QUAKE TOLL IS 300

CASUALTIES MOUNT AS RELIEF WORKERS SEARCH PENINSULA

Report 500 Injured; 30,000 Homeless Are Cared For

TOKIO, Nov. 27. — Relief workers searching the ruins of towns and villages on Izu peninsula leveled by the earthquake which rocked a large part of central Japan, today reported a toll of 300 dead and 500 injured.

Troops and the Red Cross cared for some 30,000 persons quartered in improvised shelters, their homes tumbled into shambles or burned in the wake of the worst temblor to shake the land since the 1923 catastrophe when approximately 100,000 fatalities occurred.

Several towns of Izu peninsula, Japan's favored winter playground but reputed also to be one of the "shakiest spots on earth," were completely wiped out. Landslides and fire added to the devastation. Gaping three-foot fissures appeared in various places, particularly along the 1000-year-old Tokaido highway, interfering seriously with traffic.

Preliminary estimates indicated that 5,000 houses were either destroyed or damaged; a number of water mains and reservoirs broke; bridges collapsed and a portal of Tanna tunnel at Atama crumbled. Property damage was placed at more than $100,000,000.

Refugees from the earthquake area reported that Mishima, ancient city on the Takaido highway, bore the center of the shock and consequently was completely leveled. Virtually every building collapsed with the first shock, they said, leaving its 20,000 inhabitants homeless.

The landslides occurred largely in the Hakone mountain district, but only a few casualties were reported.

Shizuoka prefecture issued a partial casualty list covering its immediate vicinity as follows:

Nirayama, 75 dead; Mishima, 6; Nishikida, 7; Kannan, 35; Kitakano, 23; Ema, 3; Tanaka, 8; Kawanishi, 15; Shuzenji, 15; Kamiomi, 1; Shimmomi, 2; Nakaomi, 7; Ito, 1; Numazu, 1; Shizuura, 1; Shimizu, 6; Atami, 3; Nahakano, 15; Nakago, 11; Joto, 5; Shinokano, 15; Izumi, 1; Nagoaka, 15; Taga, 1; Yumoto, 4; Tanna tunnel, 5.

The casualty list, as far as could be ascertained, included no foreigners. Minor shocks which have disturbed the peninsula for the past two weeks had prepared the populace for instant exit from its homes, which is believed to have materially reduced the death toll.

Food supplies and medical aid was immediately rushed to the stricken areas by the government.

DEMOCRAT WINS

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 27.—Harry Woodring, Democrat, won the governorship of Kansas by 251 votes, the official results announced today by the state canvassing board showed.

BORAH INSISTS ON DEBENTURE PLAN AS FAVORED BY GRANGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The perennial battle over farm relief legislation developed a new issue today when Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, announced that notwithstanding administration reports to the contrary, the National Grange favors immediate enactment of the debenture form of agricultural relief.

Borah has stood out as the leading exponent of the debenture, which would compel the government to pay a "bounty" of twenty-one cents on each bushel of wheat or corn exported. He has steadily insisted the debenture should be enacted at the coming short session of congress, although administration leaders have been equally insistent that no further remedy be attempted until after the federal farm board has completed its present stabilization plan through the purchase of surplus wheat.

Borah belittled the farm board's efforts to fix a wheat price of seventy-six cents a bushel on the Chicago grain exchange. The Idaho senator declared that while wheat might be selling in Chicago for seventy-six cents, the farmers of the northwest were receiving only forty-five to forty-eight cents a bushel. He said he had received ten telegrams from leading farmers in the northwest, reporting a maximum price of forty-eight cents a bushel.

The attitude of the National Grange, which claims to have more farmer-members than any other like organization, will be the subject of considerable debate when congress convenes. Louis J. Tabor, its national master, told the McNary farm conference he did not insist upon immediate passage of the debenture but said his organization still favored that plan.

The administration thereupon let it be known that the Grange would not battle for the debenture this fall but would content itself with the federal farm board's plan. Borah contradicted this contention.

"I told Mr. Tabor," Borah said, "that we could not start the debenture in the senate this session but that if we got a bill from the house on which it could be attached by majority vote, I favored doing it. He said: 'I do too'. So I expect to make that effort if the opportunity presents itself.

"Mr. Tabor also told me he still favored the debenture and that he had made no agreement as to when to push its enactment. He told me plainly that he still stands for its enactment whenever the opportunity offers."

THANKSGIVING AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — A typical Thanksgiving was to be observed at the White House today.

President and Mrs. Hoover planned to attend services at the Central Presbyterian Church in the morning. This is the church where Woodrow Wilson worshipped. The Rev. Dr. James Henry Taylor, its pastor, buried the wartime President.

In the early afternoon, a turkey dinner, with all the trimmings, will be served in the state dining room. The choicest parts of a half a dozen turkeys—gifts from admirers—will furnish the entree.

Allan Hoover, younger son of the President, arrived in Washington yesterday to be present for the holiday. Others who will be present at the family party include Edgar Rickard of New York, personal financial representative of the executive; Mrs. Rickard; their debutante daughter, Peggy, and Mrs. Starke McMullin, a class-mate and close friend of Mrs. Hoover's.

LINDBERGH TO FLY TO CALIFORNIA

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will fly to California next month, it was learned today, but will not attempt to lower the transcontinental speed record held by Captain Frank Hawks.

Colonel Lindbergh attained a speed of 185 miles an hour at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., yesterday in testing a 600 horsepower plane. He was accompanied on the flight by Mrs. Lindbergh. The plane is expected to be tuned until it attains a speed of 220 miles an hour.

Lindbergh will fly the ship to California where it will be equipped with a disappearing landing gear.

HAS REAL CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING

MANSFIELD, O., Nov. 27.—Clyde Richards, an employe of a manufacturing plant here, ate his Thanksgiving dinner today and was plenty thankful that he was able to, for yesterday he escaped death by inches while repairing an elevator pit.

Richards was working in the pit as the platform of the freight conveyor was descending. Richards shouted for help just in time to have the elevator stopped before it would have crushed him to death. As it was, he escaped with only minor cuts and bruises.

BANKER INJURED

LANCASTER, O., Nov. 27.—Due to an auto accident, H. M. Shelhamer, president of the Bremen Bank, Bremen, is suffering today from a fractured leg. His auto skidded off the road near his home.

KING WILL CLAIM ALIBI AS DEFENSE

HAMILTON ,O., Nov. 27.—Chas. King, 39, will claim an alibi when he goes on trial Monday on charges of murder in connection with the deaths of his wife and four children, Marc Fiehrer, his attorney, stated today.

King will claim that he was on a train bound for Lima, O., when his family was asphyxiated on October 24, 1929, Fiehrer said.

King's wife and two of her sons were found dead by neighbors who broke into their home October 24, 1929. Two other children died later. King was not located following the deaths until a month ago when he was arrested at Fairport Harbor, O., where he had been working as a barber.

When returned here, Chief of Police John C. Calhoun announced that King had confessed to removing the gas pipe cap and locking his wife and their children in the house.

BARGE TOWED INTO PORT BY STEAMER

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 27.—The Boston barge Gotham 85, adrift for fifteen hours in a heavy gale after parting her wire towline, was enroute to Halifax harbor in tow of a Canadian government steamer, according to advices received here today.

The plight of the barge was revealed by the tug Goliath on reaching port here. Capt. J. T. Hodges reported that the barge carried ten men and 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline consigned to Halifax from Boston.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—This was a real Thanksgiving for Joseph Brabato, 29.

Yesterday he was in prison under sentence to die for murder. Today he was free.

Convicted for the killing of Mrs. Julia Quinteri in December, 1929, he was granted a new trial and when the case was called yesterday dismissal was ordered for lack of evidence.

CONSPIRACY TRIAL OF EIGHT RUSSIANS CLAIMS ATTENTION

Prisoners Accuse Themselves Of Plot Against Nation

MOSCOW, Nov. 27.—The strange conspiracy trial in which eight prominent Russian engineers stand as defendants, who from the moment of its inception frankly accused themselves of the rankest treason, apparently welcoming the expected death penalty, continued today to hold the attention of the Soviet republic.

Hour after hour the special tribunal, hemmed in by a curious crowd and batteries of lights, cameras and broadcasting equipment, listened with little interruption of graphic self-accusations continued from previous sessions by the defendants.

Their personal description of a "giant plot" which they formed in the hope of overthrowing the Red government varied little from the four-hour indictment read to the court on the first day of trial.

If anything, they drew the shadow of the firing squad closer, asking no mercy.

"Life has proved our project was ridiculous—a small handful of intellectuals trying to overthrow the mighty proletariat," dramatically concluded Victor Larichev, one of the defendants.

The high spot of the day's trial came when several of the defendants recounted clandestine meetings allegedly held with French and British agents, among the latter the noted Col. T. E. Lawrence "of Arabia."

A mysterious Monsieur "K" was named by the defendants as the man sent by France into the Russian capital to supervise the projected sabotaging of industries and dissemination of anti-Soviet propaganda.

Professor Leonid Ramzin, charged with being the leader of the conspiracy, again expressed his belief on the stand that former President and former Premier Raymond Poincare of France and Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, as well as Winston Churchill of Britain, were the men behind the alleged French and British machinations.

The zero hour for a counter-revolt and foreign military intervention was the year 1931, the defendants revealed. Further testimony will be given as the trial continues today.

Many Major Contests Feature Holiday Grid Program

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. — While mother is stuffing the turkey this afternoon, a menu of thrill-spiced football will be on tap from coast to coast.

The Alabama - Georgia game at Birmingham is the chief course, bringing together the undefeated, untied tonnage and power team of 'Bama and an aggressive, well-drilled eleven of the Bulldogs.

Alabama is favored, having too much of a barrier in the line but should Georgia's shifty, speedy backs get out in the open they would hang up a surprise victory.

In the East Columbia plays Syracuse in New York, Cornell meets Penn in Philadelphia, Pitt plays Penn State at Pittsburgh and Brown has Colgate at Providence. Syracuse, Penn, Pitt and Colgate are picked as the probable winners. Ralph Hewitt, Columbia star, may not play at all and if he does will not be effective, giving the Orange an edge over the Blue and White. Brown was a good machine early in the year but blew up for some reason and can hardly hope to cope with the powerful Colgate eleven. Cornell has been an in-and-outer and unless Penn catches the Ithicans on one of the good days the Red and Blue should win. Pitt ought to down Penn State in a close game.

In the mid-west Oregon State plays W. Virginia in Chicago and the Aggies from the coast are rated to win. Marquette will beat Butler at Milwaukee and Nebraska should triumph over Kansas Aggies at Lincoln. Oklahoma is classed as superior to Missouri in a tilt at Noran.

Way out West Oregon will play St. Mary's in San Francisco. St. Mary's is the team that made the East weep when it beat Fordham and the Blue Ghosts are favored today.

California's great scoring machine, the Trojans of Southern California at Los Angeles, may have a busy afternoon with Washington, Seattle, but the Angelenos certainly are fit to take it. Washington only lost to Washington State, coast champions, by a 3 to 0 score, yet they lack the class of the Trojans, well-drilled, powerful aggregation.

Having in mind the Notre Dame game of December 6, the Southern Californians may start reserves, hoping to save their stars, which would be a horse of another color—we mean if the Trojans play reserves throughout, the Huskies of the north would bag the game. That event would not make much difference with the men of Troy if they could defeat Notre Dame. If Army fails to beat the Irish tomorrow and the Californians turn the trick December 6—well, how sweet is honey?

The only insect in the jam would be that unforgetable 7 to 6 defeat of the Los Angeles eleven by Washington State.

The undefeated Utah team with its all-American center candidate, Jonas, should keep its slate unmarked in playing Utah Aggies at Salt Lake City.

In the South, outside of the Georgia-Alabama battle, Auburn is picked over South Carolina at Columbus and Tennessee is liked over Kentucky at Knoxville. Tulane should find little trouble easing out over Louisiana at New Orleans, and Georgia Tech, developing slowly, may have hit the stride that will enable it to elevate eyebrows by lowering away Florida. Texas versus Texas Aggies is to be played in Austin and Mississippi Aggies versus Mississippi is carded at Starkville.

ALCOHOL FATAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The first of the holiday alcohol poison deaths was reported today. Three men, believed to have been poisoned by wood alcohol, were found dead.

SHARE IN WHITE HOUSE TURKEY

President and Mrs. Hoover invited as Thanksgiving guests, Miss Peggy Rickard, of New York, above, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Rickard. Allan Hoover, insert, the President's youngest son, also came home to share the White House turkey.

FOOTBALL ON AIR

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The National Broadcasting Company will air the Columbia-Syracuse football game in New York this afternoon and the Columbia chain will broadcast the Cornell-Penn game in Philadelphia.

The National chain, with stations WAPI, WHAS, WSM, WMC and WSMB will broadcast the Georgia-Alabama game at Birmingham.

The New York game is scheduled at 1:45 p. m., the Philadelphia contest at 1:45 and the Birmingham battle at 2:45, all eastern standard time.

GIANT GERMAN SHIP LEAVES FOR LISBON EARLY ON THURSDAY

Adverse Weather Has Delayed Trip Of Seaplane

CORUNNA, Spain, Nov. 27. — The giant seaplane DO-X, anchored here for the past several days awaiting favorable flying weather, departed for Lisbon at 10:55 a. m. today (5:55 a. m. Eastern Standard Time).

It carried no passengers.

The ship began its maiden long-distance tour twenty-three days ago, aiming to reach New York within a short time by way of Lisbon and across the Atlantic. Adverse weather swept into its path almost continually, however, causing enforced delays and stopovers in various harbors.

Although reports circulated to the effect that the trans-Atlantic flight had been abandoned, Dr. Claude Dornier repeatedly stated that a definite decision would not be reached until the DO-X reached Lisbon.

Latest intimation was that the northern route might be supplanted by a crossing via the Cape Merde and Canary Islands to the coast of Brazil, and thence northward to the United States.

AUTOIST KILLED

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 27.—Funeral arrangements were being made today for the late Mrs. John M. Smith, 57, who was killed in an auto accident near Coshocton Wednesday. Slight injuries were received by her husband, aged 60; a daughter, Mrs. Judd Smith, 44, and a granddaughter, Virginia Mae, 10.

COMMUNITY CHEST WORKERS OBSERVE HOLIDAY THURSDAY

Fund Reaches $3,043.60; Still Less Than Third Of Goal

Thanksgiving Day, generally recognized as a holiday, was observed as such by Xenia Community Fund workers Thursday and solicitation work was suspended for the day to enable the workers to enjoy a well earned rest before renewing their efforts Friday.

Cash and pledges reported by the solicitors at the close of canvassing Wednesday afternoon amounted to slightly more than $700, raising the fund total to $3,043.60, which represents not quite one-third of the $10,000 quota which must be raised during the present third annual campaign.

Wednesday's report was by far the most encouraging of any preceding day's total, however, indicating to chest leaders that continued intensive effort may bring the drive to a successful conclusion.

The wintry weather has worked a double hardship upon solicitors but they are not letting unfavorable weather bother them.

St. Brigid parochial school children have contributed 100 per cent to the campaign, it was announced Thursday, each pupil enrolled having donated to the campaign. The Adair Furniture Store, Xenia Auto Necessity Co. and The Chew Publishing Co. were also added to the "100 per cent" list Wednesday.

SAY INTOXICATED COPS CAUSE CRASH

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27.—Reports that intoxicated policemen were involved in an accident last week which resulted in the death of Dr. F. Allen Lang, ex-football star at John Carroll, and interne at St. John's Hospital, Cleveland, brought orders from Safety Director Edwin D. Barry today for a thorough investigation of the Cleveland police department.

According to rumors and an anonymous letter reaching Barry, three or four policemen, all of them allegedly in various stages of intoxication, were in the car which collided with Dr. Lang's machine. The most inebriated of the policemen were taken away from the scene of the accident by the police squad called to investigate the crash, the rumors revealed, according to Barry.

REPORT FOUR DEAD; JOBLESS SUFFER AS TEMPERATURES DROP

Little Relief Seen; Many States Feel Winter Wave

(By International News Service)

Sub-zero temperatures held Ohio in an icy grip today, adding at least four deaths in the state to the nation's estimated toll of thirty and causing much suffering, particularly to the jobless in the industrial centers and to the poverty-stricken in the coal mining regions.

The mercury hovered around the zero mark with little relief in sight today.

Automobile traffic throughout the state traveled at a snail's pace on ice-packed roads. Train service in many sections of the state was slowed up and airplanes were earth bound, especially in northern portions.

Deaths resulting directly or indirectly from the wintry blasts here and elsewhere, were estimated at more than thirty this morning. In addition to the four victims in Ohio, three died in Chicago yesterday due to the cold, ice and snow; three bodies were found in a Wyoming cabin; the body of a man was found near a Colorado sheep ranch and a mother of thirteen children was found frozen to death at La-Salle, Ill., last night following a severe snowstorm.

Miss Mary Graessele, 45, of Bucyrus, was fatally injured at Mansfield late yesterday when an automobile in which she was riding skidded and crashed into a truck trailer. Four other persons were slightly hurt in the smash-up.

At Coshocton, O., Mrs. Belle Smith, 52, was killed in an automobile collision which was the result of skidding on slippery roads. Three persons, who were riding with Mrs. Smith, were slightly injured.

Blinded by whirling snow, Fernando Fernandez, a switch cleaner for the Nickel Plate Railroad in Cleveland, was killed instantly when he stepped into the path of a freight car.

When his automobile skidded off the road and jammed against a telephone pole in Dayton, Dr. Elmer S. Guthrie was instantly killed.

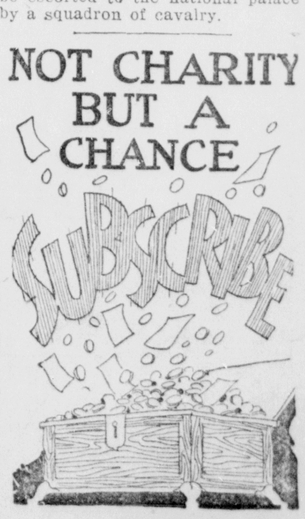
Numerous minor traffic accidents were reported throughout the state. Automobile clubs were unusually busy with telephone calls from persons seeking information as to the condition of roads for Thanksgiving Day trips.

Charity organizations in Ohio reported an unusually heavy number of requests for food and coal. Shelters for the unemployed and homeless were crowded to overflowing.

The snowfall in northern Ohio for a forty-eight-hour period exceeded six inches. Other sections of the state, likewise reported a heavy blanket. In Central Ohio the snowfall had given way to a frost-biting coldness. Temperatures in the central portion of the state registered as low as four degrees above early this morning.

CLARK TO QUALIFY

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27. — J. Reuben Clark, who succeeded Dwight W. Morrow as United States ambassador to Mexico, will present his credentials to President Ortiz Rubio Friday. He will be escorted to the national palace by a squadron of cavalry.



TEMPERATURE BELOW ZERO HERE EARLY THURSDAY; HOLIDAY FAIR

Winter held Xenia in its icy grip Thursday and with the ground blanketed by snow near-zero temperatures prevailed for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Autos skidded over the ice-coated streets and pedestrians discovered that walking was slippery business.

The official reading taken by Weatherman Ernest Harner, of the Xenia observatory, at 8 o'clock Thursday morning placed the temperature at two degrees above zero. During the preceding twenty-four hours the mercury dropped as low as one degree below zero while the maximum temperature was 28 degrees above zero.

Thanksgiving Day dawned fair but extremely cold but under the warming influence of the sun shining down upon the glistening snow it was expected that as the day wore on the weather would become slightly warmer.

No serious accidents were reported to authorities because autoists, confronted by glazed streets and highways, drove as cautiously as possible.

The high spot of the day's trial came when several of the defendants recounted clandestine meetings allegedly held with French and British agents, among the latter the noted Col. T. E. Lawrence "of Arabia."

A mysterious Monsieur "K" was named by the defendants as the man sent by France into the Russian capital to supervise the projected sabotaging of industries and dissemination of anti-Soviet propaganda.

Professor Leonid Ramzin, charged with being the leader of the conspiracy, again expressed his belief on the stand that former President and former Premier Raymond Poincare of France and Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, as well as Winston Churchill of Britain, were the men behind the alleged French and British machinations.

The zero hour for a counter-revolt and foreign military intervention was the year 1931, the defendants revealed. Further testimony will be given as the trial continues today.

KING WILL CLAIM ALIBI AS DEFENSE

HAMILTON ,O., Nov. 27.—Chas. King, 39, will claim an alibi when he goes on trial Monday on charges of murder in connection with the deaths of his wife and four children, Marc Fiehrer, his attorney, stated today.

King will claim that he was on a train bound for Lima, O., when his family was asphyxiated on October 24, 1929, Fiehrer said.

King's wife and two of her sons were found dead by neighbors who broke into their home October 24, 1929. Two other children died later. King was not located following the deaths until a month ago when he was arrested at Fairport Harbor, O., where he had been working as a barber.

When returned here, Chief of Police John C. Calhoun announced that King had confessed to removing the gas pipe cap and locking his wife and their children in the house.

BARGE TOWED INTO PORT BY STEAMER

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 27.—The Boston barge Gotham 85, adrift for fifteen hours in a heavy gale after parting her wire towline, was enroute to Halifax harbor in tow of a Canadian government steamer, according to advices received here today.

The plight of the barge was revealed by the tug Goliath on reaching port here. Capt. J. T. Hodges reported that the barge carried ten men and 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline consigned to Halifax from Boston.

TEMPERATURE BELOW ZERO HERE EARLY THURSDAY; HOLIDAY FAIR

Winter held Xenia in its icy grip Thursday and with the ground blanketed by snow near-zero temperatures prevailed for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Autos skidded over the ice-coated streets and pedestrians discovered that walking was slippery business.

The official reading taken by Weatherman Ernest Harner, of the Xenia observatory, at 8 o'clock Thursday morning placed the temperature at two degrees above zero. During the preceding twenty-four hours the mercury dropped as low as one degree below zero while the maximum temperature was 28 degrees above zero.

Thanksgiving Day dawned fair but extremely cold but under the warming influence of the sun shining down upon the glistening snow it was expected that as the day wore on the weather would become slightly warmer.

No serious accidents were reported to authorities because autoists, confronted by glazed streets and highways, drove as cautiously as possible.

SHARE IN WHITE HOUSE TURKEY

President and Mrs. Hoover invited as Thanksgiving guests, Miss Peggy Rickard, of New York, above, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Rickard. Allan Hoover, insert, the President's youngest son, also came home to share the White House turkey.

FOOTBALL ON AIR

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The National Broadcasting Company will air the Columbia-Syracuse football game in New York this afternoon and the Columbia chain will broadcast the Cornell-Penn game in Philadelphia.

The National chain, with stations WAPI, WHAS, WSM, WMC and WSMB will broadcast the Georgia-Alabama game at Birmingham.

The New York game is scheduled at 1:45 p. m., the Philadelphia contest at 1:45 and the Birmingham battle at 2:45, all eastern standard time.

GIANT GERMAN SHIP LEAVES FOR LISBON EARLY ON THURSDAY

Adverse Weather Has Delayed Trip Of Seaplane

CORUNNA, Spain, Nov. 27. — The giant seaplane DO-X, anchored here for the past several days awaiting favorable flying weather, departed for Lisbon at 10:55 a. m. today (5:55 a. m. Eastern Standard Time).

It carried no passengers.

The ship began its maiden long-distance tour twenty-three days ago, aiming to reach New York within a short time by way of Lisbon and across the Atlantic. Adverse weather swept into its path almost continually, however, causing enforced delays and stopovers in various harbors.

Although reports circulated to the effect that the trans-Atlantic flight had been abandoned, Dr. Claude Dornier repeatedly stated that a definite decision would not be reached until the DO-X reached Lisbon.

Latest intimation was that the northern route might be supplanted by a crossing via the Cape Merde and Canary Islands to the coast of Brazil, and thence northward to the United States.

AUTOIST KILLED

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 27.—Funeral arrangements were being made today for the late Mrs. John M. Smith, 57, who was killed in an auto accident near Coshocton Wednesday. Slight injuries were received by her husband, aged 60; a daughter, Mrs. Judd Smith, 44, and a granddaughter, Virginia Mae, 10.

COMMUNITY CHEST WORKERS OBSERVE HOLIDAY THURSDAY

Fund Reaches $3,043.60; Still Less Than Third Of Goal

Thanksgiving Day, generally recognized as a holiday, was observed as such by Xenia Community Fund workers Thursday and solicitation work was suspended for the day to enable the workers to enjoy a well earned rest before renewing their efforts Friday.

Cash and pledges reported by the solicitors at the close of canvassing Wednesday afternoon amounted to slightly more than $700, raising the fund total to $3,043.60, which represents not quite one-third of the $10,000 quota which must be raised during the present third annual campaign.

Wednesday's report was by far the most encouraging of any preceding day's total, however, indicating to chest leaders that continued intensive effort may bring the drive to a successful conclusion.

The wintry weather has worked a double hardship upon solicitors but they are not letting unfavorable weather bother them.

St. Brigid parochial school children have contributed 100 per cent to the campaign, it was announced Thursday, each pupil enrolled having donated to the campaign. The Adair Furniture Store, Xenia Auto Necessity Co. and The Chew Publishing Co. were also added to the "100 per cent" list Wednesday.

SAY INTOXICATED COPS CAUSE CRASH

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27.—Reports that intoxicated policemen were involved in an accident last week which resulted in the death of Dr. F. Allen Lang, ex-football star at John Carroll, and interne at St. John's Hospital, Cleveland, brought orders from Safety Director Edwin D. Barry today for a thorough investigation of the Cleveland police department.

According to rumors and an anonymous letter reaching Barry, three or four policemen, all of them allegedly in various stages of intoxication, were in the car which collided with Dr. Lang's machine. The most inebriated of the policemen were taken away from the scene of the accident by the police squad called to investigate the crash, the rumors revealed, according to Barry.

REPORT FOUR DEAD; JOBLESS SUFFER AS TEMPERATURES DROP

Little Relief Seen; Many States Feel Winter Wave

(By International News Service)

Sub-zero temperatures held Ohio in an icy grip today, adding at least four deaths in the state to the nation's estimated toll of thirty and causing much suffering, particularly to the jobless in the industrial centers and to the poverty-stricken in the coal mining regions.

The mercury hovered around the zero mark with little relief in sight today.

Automobile traffic throughout the state traveled at a snail's pace on ice-packed roads. Train service in many sections of the state was slowed up and airplanes were earth bound, especially in northern portions.

Deaths resulting directly or indirectly from the wintry blasts here and elsewhere, were estimated at more than thirty this morning. In addition to the four victims in Ohio, three died in Chicago yesterday due to the cold, ice and snow; three bodies were found in a Wyoming cabin; the body of a man was found near a Colorado sheep ranch and a mother of thirteen children was found frozen to death at La-Salle, Ill., last night following a severe snowstorm.

Miss Mary Graessele, 45, of Bucyrus, was fatally injured at Mansfield late yesterday when an automobile in which she was riding skidded and crashed into a truck trailer. Four other persons were slightly hurt in the smash-up.

At Coshocton, O., Mrs. Belle Smith, 52, was killed in an automobile collision which was the result of skidding on slippery roads. Three persons, who were riding with Mrs. Smith, were slightly injured.

Blinded by whirling snow, Fernando Fernandez, a switch cleaner for the Nickel Plate Railroad in Cleveland, was killed instantly when he stepped into the path of a freight car.

When his automobile skidded off the road and jammed against a telephone pole in Dayton, Dr. Elmer S. Guthrie was instantly killed.

Numerous minor traffic accidents were reported throughout the state. Automobile clubs were unusually busy with telephone calls from persons seeking information as to the condition of roads for Thanksgiving Day trips.

Charity organizations in Ohio reported an unusually heavy number of requests for food and coal. Shelters for the unemployed and homeless were crowded to overflowing.

The snowfall in northern Ohio for a forty-eight-hour period exceeded six inches. Other sections of the state, likewise reported a heavy blanket. In Central Ohio the snowfall had given way to a frost-biting coldness. Temperatures in the central portion of the state registered as low as four degrees above early this morning.

CLARK TO QUALIFY

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27. — J. Reuben Clark, who succeeded Dwight W. Morrow as United States ambassador to Mexico, will present his credentials to President Ortiz Rubio Friday. He will be escorted to the national palace by a squadron of cavalry.

Pretty Home Ceremony Unites Couple

BEFORE an assemblage of sixty guests, relatives and close friends of the couple, Miss Myrtle Bickett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bickett and Mr. John H. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Peterson, near New Burlington, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, east of Xenia, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Laura Caroline Bickett, of near Wheeling, W. Va., cousin of the bride, sang "Your Song from Paradise" and "At Dawning." She was accompanied at the piano by her sister, Miss Isabelle Bickett, also from near Wheeling, who played Mendelssohn's Wedding March during the ceremony and the Lohengrin Wedding March following the service.

The ceremony was performed before an improvised altar, banked with palms and ferns, arranged before the fireplace in the living room of the Bickett home. The single ring service was read by Dr. H. B. McElree, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, this city, assisted by Dr. J. W. Bickett, near Wheeling, W. Va., an uncle of the bride. The wedding procession was led by Harold Peterson, nephew of the groom and small son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peterson. He carried a bouquet of white roses in which the ring was concealed. Following him walked Dr. McElree and the bridegroom. The bride entered next on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was of white silk crepe, made with a circular skirt and large cape collar. Her veil was of white tulle, caught with a bridal wreath and fell just below the hemline of her dress. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

An interesting feature of the wedding was that it occurred on the twenty-ninth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

Later a two course luncheon was served the guests. The bridal couple and ten of its friends were seated at a bride's table, which was decorated in a color scheme of pink and white. The other guests were seated at small tables arranged throughout the other rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Peterson left early Wednesday evening for a short wedding trip, but did not reveal their destination. Mrs. Peterson's going-away outfit was a green wool ensemble with hat and footwear to harmonize. Before leaving she divided her bridal bouquet into two sections and presented them to her mother and the groom's mother. Upon their return they will reside on Mr. Peterson's farm near New Burlington. A dinner will be given in their honor next Tuesday evening at the home of the groom's parents.

Mrs. Peterson is a graduate of Central High School and also of Muskingum College, New Concord, O. For several years she taught at Caesarcreek High School. Mr. Peterson is a graduate of Kingman High School and also attended Miami-Jacobs Business College, Dayton. He purchased the Joseph Shambaugh farm near New Burlington four years ago and has been engaged in farming there.

Guests present at the wedding were from Wheeling, W. Va.; Sabina, Wilmington and Bourneville, O.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES TRAPPING AUTOIST

TIFFIN, O., Nov. 27.—Fred L. Drake, 40, was reported recovering here today from injuries he received yesterday when the Honey Creek bridge collapsed and plunged him in his automobile to the bottom of the stream.

After breaking the windshield of his sedan and escaping, Drake struggled up a steep embankment just in time to warn an approaching automobile of the collapsed bridge.

In attempting to stop, the automobile skidded and struck Drake, knocking him half down the embankment.

An investigation has been launched into the bridge collapse by county authorities.

PRISONERS DINE ON PORK-NOT TURKEY

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—The 4,000 prisoners in Ohio penitentiary here will have a treat for their Thanksgiving dinner, but the popular turkey will be substituted by roast pork.

The complete menu:

Roast pork, candied sweet potatoes, brown gravy, oyster dressing, stewed corn, peanut butter, bread, popcorn balls, coffee, apple pie and stogies.

Because of the business depression, Warden P. E. Thomas has forbidden the receipt of boxes of home-made delicacies. He said the sending of boxes of fruit and candy and such things would work a hardship on the relatives of many prisoners.

SEVEN KILLED

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Seven persons were killed and eleven injured when an electric train was derailed at Ancona, Italy, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from that city.

M'CORMICK TO WED

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 27.—Announcement of the engagement of John McCormick, motion picture producer and divorced husband of Colleen Moore, to Mae Clark, stage and screen actress, was made here today.

It is expected they will be married in May, when McCormick's divorce decree from Miss Moore becomes final.

LIBRARY BUSY

ALTHOUGH the business of the country generally is feeling the effects of the financial depression, the Greene County Library is busier than ever before in its history.

During the month of October 8,665 books were borrowed from the main library alone, over 1,300 more than in October of the previous year.

November promises to show a decided increase also. During one day alone more than 600 books were charged out at the desk of the library on Church St. County library branches at Osborn, Bowersville and other places also report increased reading.

Plans for the Christmas party at the Xenia B. P. W. Club will be discussed at a special called meeting of club members in the assembly room of the Court House Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. It is urgent that all members attend the meeting.

SENTENCED TO PEN

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Nov. 27.—Arden Kuhn, 35, of Massillon, who escaped three times from the state hospital for the criminal insane at Lima, today faced the bleak sentence of two years in Ohio penitentiary for an attempted burglary in Dover.

WIDOW TO TESTIFY AT MURDER TRIAL

KENTON, O., Nov. 27.—Five more witnesses will be called by the state in the first degree murder case of James Willis, 21, of Kenton, who is charged with the fatal shooting of G. L. Ansley, 49, prosecuting attorneys declared today.

Among the witnesses yet to testify is Ansley's widow. Eight state's witnesses had testified before court adjourned for the Thanksgiving holiday.

The revolver, alleged to have been used in the shooting and two bullets taken from Ansley's body were introduced as state's exhibits.

BRIDGE BURNS

The wooden flooring of an overhead bridge above the Pennsylvania Railroad on a road intersecting the Wilberforce and Jamestown pikes caught fire from sparks from a locomotive about 3 o'clock Thursday morning, but the extent of damage caused by the blaze was not reported. The fire department received a report the bridge was afire but the scene of the blaze was outside its territory.

AL SMITH HONORED

DUBLIN, Nov. 27.—A degree "in absente" of doctor of laws was conferred by the University of Ireland upon former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York today.

RELATIVES FAIL TO BREAK BROWN WILL

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27.—Efforts of sixteen nieces and nephews of the late David Brown, Cleveland real estate dealer, to break his will in which he bequeathed the bulk of a $100,000 estate to his former housekeeper, Mrs. Irene Ban, had ended unsuccessfully today, following the return of a verdict in favor of the woman by a common pleas court jury.

After a deliberation of more than seven hours, the jury voted nine to three in favor of permitting the will to stand.

Mrs. Ban, self-styled "love mother" of the realtor, waged her defense in the trial on the contention that Brown was the father of two of her children.

Pretty Home Ceremony Unites Couple

BEFORE an assemblage of sixty guests, relatives and close friends of the couple, Miss Myrtle Bickett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bickett and Mr. John H. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Peterson, near New Burlington, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, east of Xenia, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Laura Caroline Bickett, of near Wheeling, W. Va., cousin of the bride, sang "Your Song from Paradise" and "At Dawning." She was accompanied at the piano by her sister, Miss Isabelle Bickett, also from near Wheeling, who played Mendelssohn's Wedding March during the ceremony and the Lohengrin Wedding March following the service.

The ceremony was performed before an improvised altar, banked with palms and ferns, arranged before the fireplace in the living room of the Bickett home. The single ring service was read by Dr. H. B. McElree, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, this city, assisted by Dr. J. W. Bickett, near Wheeling, W. Va., an uncle of the bride. The wedding procession was led by Harold Peterson, nephew of the groom and small son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peterson. He carried a bouquet of white roses in which the ring was concealed. Following him walked Dr. McElree and the bridegroom. The bride entered next on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was of white silk crepe, made with a circular skirt and large cape collar. Her veil was of white tulle, caught with a bridal wreath and fell just below the hemline of her dress. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

An interesting feature of the wedding was that it occurred on the twenty-ninth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

Later a two course luncheon was served the guests. The bridal couple and ten of its friends were seated at a bride's table, which was decorated in a color scheme of pink and white. The other guests were seated at small tables arranged throughout the other rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Peterson left early Wednesday evening for a short wedding trip, but did not reveal their destination. Mrs. Peterson's going-away outfit was a green wool ensemble with hat and footwear to harmonize. Before leaving she divided her bridal bouquet into two sections and presented them to her mother and the groom's mother. Upon their return they will reside on Mr. Peterson's farm near New Burlington. A dinner will be given in their honor next Tuesday evening at the home of the groom's parents.

Mrs. Peterson is a graduate of Central High School and also of Muskingum College, New Concord, O. For several years she taught at Caesarcreek High School. Mr. Peterson is a graduate of Kingman High School and also attended Miami-Jacobs Business College, Dayton. He purchased the Joseph Shambaugh farm near New Burlington four years ago and has been engaged in farming there.

Guests present at the wedding were from Wheeling, W. Va.; Sabina, Wilmington and Bourneville, O.

Mrs. Fred Marshall, Chicago, will arrive here Friday to spend the week end with her sisters-in-law, Mrs. Carrie Best and Miss Laura Marshall, W. Main St.

Mr. H. E. Schmidt, Jr., is spending Thanksgiving and the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schmidt, W. Third St. He is a student at Kenyon College, Gambier, O.

RELATIVES FAIL TO BREAK BROWN WILL

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27.—Efforts of sixteen nieces and nephews of the late David Brown, Cleveland real estate dealer, to break his will in which he bequeathed the bulk of a $100,000 estate to his former housekeeper, Mrs. Irene Ban, had ended unsuccessfully today, following the return of a verdict in favor of the woman by a common pleas court jury.

After a deliberation of more than seven hours, the jury voted nine to three in favor of permitting the will to stand.

Mrs. Ban, self-styled "love mother" of the realtor, waged her defense in the trial on the contention that Brown was the father of two of her children.

Mr. John G. Eavey, who underwent an operation for appendfcitis at McClellan Hospital several weeks ago, was removed to his home on Pleasant St, Wednesday afternoon. He is recovering nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Norris, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Kerr and daughter, Jean and Miss Floretta Norris of Akron, are guests of Mrs. Howard Norris, Hill St. They will remain here until Friday evening.

Mr. Robert Morton, student at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O., is spending the Thanksgiving vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Morton, N. King St. He was accompanied home by Mr. Kenneth Finlay, this city, who has been his guest since last Saturday.

Miss Josephine John, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. John, N. Galloway St., who underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis at McClellan Hospital Wednesday afternoon, was reported to be in a favorable condition Thursday morning.

HE DOESN'T APPRECIATE THE BREAK

Most any male would appreciate being singled out by Jeannette Loff, Hollywood film player, but Mr. Gobbler doesn't seem a bit happy at finding himself so honored. Maybe he has heard about Thanksgiving!

LIBRARY BUSY

ALTHOUGH the business of the country generally is feeling the effects of the financial depression, the Greene County Library is busier than ever before in its history.

During the month of October 8,665 books were borrowed from the main library alone, over 1,300 more than in October of the previous year.

November promises to show a decided increase also. During one day alone more than 600 books were charged out at the desk of the library on Church St. County library branches at Osborn, Bowersville and other places also report increased reading.

Plans for the Christmas party at the Xenia B. P. W. Club will be discussed at a special called meeting of club members in the assembly room of the Court House Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. It is urgent that all members attend the meeting.

SENTENCED TO PEN

WIDOW TO TESTIFY AT MURDER TRIAL

KENTON, O., Nov. 27.—Five more witnesses will be called by the state in the first degree murder case of James Willis, 21, of Kenton, who is charged with the fatal shooting of G. L. Ansley, 49, prosecuting attorneys declared today.

Among the witnesses yet to testify is Ansley's widow. Eight state's witnesses had testified before court adjourned for the Thanksgiving holiday.

The revolver, alleged to have been used in the shooting and two bullets taken from Ansley's body were introduced as state's exhibits.

BRIDGE BURNS

The wooden flooring of an overhead bridge above the Pennsylvania Railroad on a road intersecting the Wilberforce and Jamestown pikes caught fire from sparks from a locomotive about 3 o'clock Thursday morning, but the extent of damage caused by the blaze was not reported. The fire department received a report the bridge was afire but the scene of the blaze was outside its territory.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES TRAPPING AUTOIST

TIFFIN, O., Nov. 27.—Fred L. Drake, 40, was reported recovering here today from injuries he received yesterday when the Honey Creek bridge collapsed and plunged him in his automobile to the bottom of the stream.

After breaking the windshield of his sedan and escaping, Drake struggled up a steep embankment just in time to warn an approaching automobile of the collapsed bridge.

In attempting to stop, the automobile skidded and struck Drake, knocking him half down the embankment.

An investigation has been launched into the bridge collapse by county authorities.

PRISONERS DINE ON PORK-NOT TURKEY

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—The 4,000 prisoners in Ohio penitentiary here will have a treat for their Thanksgiving dinner, but the popular turkey will be substituted by roast pork.

The complete menu:

Roast pork, candied sweet potatoes, brown gravy, oyster dressing, stewed corn, peanut butter, bread, popcorn balls, coffee, apple pie and stogies.

Because of the business depression, Warden P. E. Thomas has forbidden the receipt of boxes of home-made delicacies. He said the sending of boxes of fruit and candy and such things would work a hardship on the relatives of many prisoners.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And the four and twenty elders which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God, Saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord, God Almighty, which art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and has reigned.—Revelation, XI, 16, 17.

A NATION'S THANKSGIVING

How thankful should we be that there is an increasingly Christian spirit in America! We should be thankful for the disposition to deplore injustices and unbrotherliness, and increasing indications of an awakened conscience nationally.

We should be thankful as a nation for the encouraging prospects of peace among the nations.

We should be thankful for the unparalleled interest in Jesus Christ, a greater appreciation of His life and the sincere attempts to apply His teachings to all human relationships in this and other lands.

We should be thankful for the institution of the Church, eager to serve the present day needs by emphasizing the value of spiritual things in our modern scientific machine age.

Finally, we should be thankful that our nation sets apart a Day to give thanks as a national recognition of the goodness of God to His peoples everywhere.

LAME DUCK QUESTION

The question of changing things in Washington so that there will no longer be a "lame duck" session of congress is receiving its regular biennial airing. The subject always is brought forward by senators and representatives who are not lame ducks themselves and who, presumably cherish a delusion that they never will find themselves in that class.

The arguments are all in favor of altering the times at which congress meets so that no member will participate in its deliberations after his successor has been elected. The changes suggested are logical. Nobody undertakes to say they are not. But, on the other hand, neither the country nor the majority of the members of the two houses ever seem to be able to get greatly heated up over the subject.

Probably there are several reasons for this condition of passivity. The inertia caused by the presence of an order of things established with the founding of the nation is difficult to overcome. It is not clear that the present arrangement really is much more than a theoretical evil. It is not evident that "lame duck" sessions do any especial mischief. Most of that is perpetrated in the long sessions. The abuse of the "lame ducks" by their fellows who still have sound political walking apparatus is more demagogic as a rule than it is sincere and patriotic.

Beside all that, in view of the progressive deterioration of the quality of the membership of congress, it is rather difficult to blow up very much heartfelt enthusiasm over a proposal which, if adopted, will tend to accelerate progress downward, rather than retard it.

It will be perfectly proper to do away with the lame duck sessions, but the nation will be able to endure if they are allowed to persist.

A committee of public safety has been created in New York to combat the racketeers that are alleged to take $100,000,000 a year out of the pockets of legitimate business. Other cities will follow Gotham's example when the influences for decency in them discover they are getting nowhere by bleating against the criminals. They've got to act.

When religions and castes in India can submerge their differences for the good of their country, American political parties ought to be able to lay off each other from the same high motive.

I AM THANKFUL

I make a list for Thanksgiving Day. I sit and let life move through my memory. I push the sordid and the mean away from me. I try to think of the finer and more enduring gifts one receives from life. I know there is hardness and indifference and pain in our living, but I turn aside from them for Thanksgiving Day and remember only that we have cause for thankfulness every hour of our lives.

I am thankful for puppy dogs that wag their tails and put their paws on me, for kittens that play and grown-up cats that ornament a home, for apples that are crisp and last the winter through, for birds that flash through gardens, for cool water when I thirst, for hot water when I am dirty and tired. I am thankful for small things.

* * *

I am thankful for certain sunsets I have seen and for occasional dawns, for moonlight on a dreaming city, for trees that lose their green leaves in the fall and claim them again in spring, for bulbs that retreat to darkness of winter but come conquering again in summer, for sunlight through trees, for the green on our California hills in autumn, for eastern trees that stand bravely beneath a weight of snow, for swift rides in automobiles, for quiet walks in the clear air that follows rain. For these I am grateful.

I am thankful for the wild goose that flies high above my head, for the eagle that screams to his waiting younglings, for the soft look in the eyes of a doe, for the bee that stores honey in a tree, for the wild lilac that covers my western canyons—I am thankful.

I am thankful for sudden, carefree laughter, for surprise parties and compliments and Grand Slams at bridge, for a little luck, for girling girls and sturdy youngsters who don't cry when they're hurt, for Compassion and Friendliness and Deep Affection, for Experience and Failure and Comfort and Fond Illusions and the Breaks of Life.

* * *

I am thankful for Gadflies, even, and people who will not let me be. I am thankful for the million winking stars and for minds that can understand them and the laws through which they move. I am thankful for all the great, all the wise, all the strong and tender men and women who have lived—for their deeds, for their dreams, for all hopes, all beauty, all legend and music they have brought into the world. I am thankful for the kindness of friends when I am troubled, for the shame fine people bring upon me—for the way they endure their agonies and save my averted face.

I am thankful for Life and I am not ashamed—and I know few men or women who could not, if they wished, make such a list as this.

THE QUESTION BOX

— Central Press Wash. Bureau —

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

How many millionaires are there in the United States?

Using the compilation of the tax statistics for 1926, there were 225 persons reporting incomes of $1,000,000 or more in the United States in that year. New York state with a total of 92 easily led all the other states. These figures are, as stated, for persons reporting an income of a million or more annually. The number of persons actually in the millionaire class would amount to many times this figure.

Peace Palace

When was the Peace Palace at The Hague built and what was the amount contributed by Andrew Carnegie toward its construction?

Following the establishment of the Court of Arbitration in 1899, the Palace of Peace, designed by the French architect, L. M. Cordonnier, was erected, Andrew Carnegie contributing $1,500,000 towards the expense of constructing.

Old Age Pensions

In how many of the states which have old age pension laws is the cost of said pension pensions carried partly by the state?

Of the seven states in which pension laws were in force in 1929, only one, Wisconsin, assumes part of the cost with the counties. In Wisconsin the state government assumes one-third of the cost up to a total of as much as $200,000 per annum. Beyond this the counties are required to meet the cost. In all the other states the full cost of the pension is borne by the counties.

Relation

What is the relationship between Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and the late Theodore Roosevelt?

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt is related to the late President Roosevelt through his marriage to the latter's niece. However, a blood relationship does exist, although it is a distant one, the governor coming from another branch of the Roosevelt family.

Prohibition

When and by whom was the eighteenth amendment adopted?

The house of representatives in Washington, D. C., adopted December 17, 1917, a senate joint resolution submitting to the states an amendment providing for the suppression of the liquor traffic one year after the ratification of the amendment by the required 36 state legislatures. The resolution had passed the senate August 1, 1917. It was amended by the house and the senate accepted the resolution as amended December 18. The proposed amendment was submitted to the state legislatures for ratification and by January 16, 1919, more than 36, the required number for making an amendment to the constitution valid, had taken affirmative action. Ratification of the prohibition amendment was formally proclaimed January 19, 1919.

Bo-Broadway

— By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE —

NEW YORK — Less money is spent by the average American for books than for greeting cards. The daily circulation of newspapers in this country is 66,305,151—and this, for millions, is the sole available reading.

Last year, of the 225,000,000 volumes released by publishers 10,187 new titles or editions were placed on the market.

NOT BOOK LOVERS

Statisticians have learned that the average American buys only two books a year; and after a slant at most of the books published in 1930, The Pastor, without prejudice, voices the belief that one of the two books the average American should get hold of, without delay, is the recent release by the Vanguard Press, of Edward Dean Sullivan's "Chicago Surrenders."

"CHICAGO SURRENDERS"

With the crime situation in the United States the subject of world discussion, "Chicago Surrenders," furnishes an expose of the situation that cannot be overlooked.

It's one of the most important volumes issued in many a long day.

Mr. Sullivan, the author, is a veteran newspaper man — a keenly intelligent and sympathetic observer who brought to the writing of this book an experience gleaned from a quarter of a century of the hurly-burly of newsgathering in New York and Chicago.

In the old days, at Headquarters in Tammany Town, Sullivan rode nightly with Lieutenant Charles Becker and the latter's Strong Arm Squad—the same "Charlie" Becker who later, with four gunmen, was executed at Sing Sing for the murder of the gambler Rosenthal.

Sullivan "served time" at Auburn Prison as part of a newspaper investigation into the reactions of men confined there. In Chicago, during a race riot in 1924, Sullivan's life was saved by Dion O'Banion, later to become one of the wealthiest and most colorful gangsters in that gang-ridden city. It was from men like O'Banion that he gained his amazing slant on the gangster psychology.

WORTH NOTHING

That is a statement that should challenge the attention of the forces of righteousness — and, remember, it's uttered by a man who has won international recognition as an authority on the subject.

Don't mistake it. This is not a thinly veiled slam at prohibition. Mr. Sullivan makes no effort to explain, defend or attack the conduct or attitude of either the Dry or Wet element. He thinks both factions are responsible for an "overtone of menace such as no other nation has experienced." He merely arrays facts, sets forth "a condition that has never before been approached in the history of civilization," and in the rehearsal avoids controversy.

I repeat:

"Chicago Surrenders" is one of the most important volumes issued in many a long day.

THINK OF OTHER FOLK!

WETS HOPE TO LINE UP BOTH MAJOR PARTIES IN PRESIDENTIAL RACE

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—The wets are mighty hopeful of 1932.

They reckon that the Democratic convention is sure to name a wet presidential candidate, the southern delegations acquiescing. And it does sound like a reasonable forecast—assuming the choice of such a nominee, for example, as Franklin Roosevelt, who certainly appears to be overwhelmingly the strongest Democratic probability, at the present writing.

Furthermore, the wets calculate that the Republican candidate will be so scared at the Democratic candidate's wetness that he, too, will declare himself pretty wetly. This also is conceivable. It is unimaginable that the G. O. P. will select any dryer standard bearer than Mr. Hoover, and he is not so irrevocably committed to prohibition as to make it inconsistent for him to indorse modification.

NOW—IF MY dry readers will bear with me for a moment—I am not trying to make out a case for the wets, but to point out what seems to me to be an error in their mathematics.

Let us suppose, then, that both of the old line presidential candidates do take the wet side in 1932—cautiously, of course (they will do plenty of qualifying, that's a foregone conclusion), but too unmistakably to justify conscientious bone drys in voting for either one of them.

On such a supposition, the wets argue that nothing will remain for the drys but to put up a third, prohibition ticket—which the wets are confident will make only an insignificant showing, as in the pre-Eighteenth amendment days.

BEFORE accepting this theory 100 per cent, however, let us do a little more supposing.

Supposing that a third party presidential candidate runs in 1932, as a dry and nothing but a dry, he undoubtedly will be not only beaten, but hopelessly distanced.

Vice President Curtis (mentioned as a dry presidential possibility) would hardly carry Kansas. Simeon D. Fess (similarly mentioned) would be lucky to carry anything. George White, Ohio's newly-elected dryly Democratic governor (likewise mentioned), sounds about equally unpromising.

BUT SUPPOSE Gifford Pinchot should be nominated—as a progressive, just as the late Senator La Follette was nominated in 1924—and as a dry merely incidentally.

The western states are the progressive states—and dry also.

La Follette ran in a poor year for a progressive; we had "prosperity" with us then. And La Follette was a wet. Two years hence may be a better time, progressively speaking—plus the prohibition issue.

Supposing Mr. Pinchot to be a presidential candidate, it must be recognized that his dryness will handicap him in the populous eastern states—but we are supposing that, in these states, a wet Republican and a wet Democrat are splitting the wet presidential vote between them.

Or, instead of Mr. Pinchot, let us suppose the 1932 presidential nomination of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho as a third party progressive—and incidentally as a dry.

IN ALL THIS supposing, we are assuming that the third party dry has two wet (or wettish) rivals in the field against him.

The assumption that both old line parties will be pro-modification in 1932 is the wets' assumption and they like to assume it, because they figure that repudiation of prohibition by both of the orthodox political parties will relegate the dry cause to its pre-Eighteenth amendment status of impotency.

The point that I am attempting to make is that it does not look that way to me. To me it looks as if the wets will be much better off if one of the old line parties stays as dry as possible.

ENTHUSIASTIC wets refer to the country as overwhelmingly wet and enthusiastic drys refer to it as overwhelmingly dry.

My personal notion is that it is not sufficiently either the one way or the other for the majority element (whichever one it may be) to split its vote without being defeated.

So I would say that a strong presidential campaigner, like Gifford Pinchot or Senator Borah, could not ask anything better than to have all the wet Republicans voting for a modification Republican candidate and all the wet Democrats voting for a wet Democrat, while he scooped in all the drys from both groups.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

RED ANTS GAIN IN BATTLE

"One less ugly Red Ant to make trouble for the rest of the insects!" exulted Peter, then suddenly remembered his duty. He had hurried to the hill to see what he could see, and not yet had he peeped over the hill's top. Peter's heart leaped to his throat. Red Ant had already reached the Black Ant hill. What was to prevent others being there, too? What if he should meet another fierce enemy face to face at the crest? However, this was no time for fear. Peter had made a solemn promise to dear old Busy. It was up to him to keep it. Busy was depending on him for news, be that news good or bad.

Grasping his spike firmly, Peter made the best haste he could to the top of the hill. At last he reached his goal. Carefully, quietly he raised himself until he could peep over the crest. Whatever Peter may have thought to see, he was hardly prepared for the sight that now met his eyes. It did not seem very long ago since he had been watching the battle between the opposing tribes of ants from the other side of the hill, yet there had been time enough for a great deal to happen. At first glance, all doubt as to which side was going to win the battle, vanished. The columns of Red Ants had driven the poor Black Ants back and back until the battle was waging right under Peter's very nose right at the foot of the Ant hill. Although it was a dreadful sight, Peter, fascinated, gazed upon it, and, by and by, he began to see that the Ants fought in perfect order, just as they did everything else.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

— By MRS. MARY MORTON —

MENU HINT

Mock Chicken
Sweet Potatoes
Peas Cooked With Carrots
Apple, Celery and White Grape Salad on Lettuce With Mayonnaise
Nut Bread Butter
Chocolate Tapioca
Coffee

This menu will serve four. It may be served for a dinner or supper.

Today's Recipes

Mock Chicken.—This is prepared by having the butcher put little pieces of veal on to a skewer. Boil until tender, then roll in egg and breadcrumbs and fry.

Nut Bread.—Three-fourths cup sugar, four cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one egg, one and one-half cups milk, one cup nut meats. Sift sugar, flour, baking powder and salt together, then add egg, milk and nuts. Let stand one-half hour and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven.

Suggestions

Pasteurized Fruits

The pasteurization of dates after they are packaged is one of the latest innovations in the packing of dried fruits. This is done for the same purpose that milk is pasteurized, the destruction of harmful bacteria. While this process has not been widely applied to all dried fruits, it is said to be one of the future trends in this form of food production. The packages of pitted dates ready for use is another interesting development in the date industry.

In the fig family we are acquainted with the whole or pulled figs, the whole figs and the figs in syrup, the latter pertaining to the canned figs, and the former to the dried variety. The whole or pulled figs are usually a little more expensive than the others, but if they are to be served whole in salads or dessert, the additional cost is justified. Otherwise the layer figs will be just as tasty.

Dried apricots, peaches and apples, too, are coming to be more appreciated, now that we can procure them in better form than in previous days. All must be perfectly coooked to be enjoyed and to be relieved of the stigma of being unappetizing, a reputation attributed to dried fruits in general and prunes in particular.

Non-Skid Drainer

Put a ten-cent rubber mat under the dish pan or drainer that you stand on the drain board. It will prevent skidding.

Clean Combs and Brushes

— By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. —

Man, like the elephant, the rhinoceros, the hippopotamus and Canis chihuahua, is an almost hairless mammal. Such hair as we have is largely useless except as a secondary sexual characteristic. It is employed almost exclusively for the purpose of attracting a mate. Thus it acquires an exaggerated importance in our eyes.

Women used to want to have hair long and glossy and then they wanted it short and glossy. And now they are having the devil's own time trying to decide which way and glossy they want it.

But the foolish things women do about their hair for mating purposes is matched and double checked by what men do for the same reason. Think of the long-haired poets and violinists, with the feminine audience exhaling deeply as the mane is tossed back. And the Brigham Young beards in the old days. I remember as a kid seeing a great-uncle of mine combing his beard, which hung to his waist, until it shone with its silkiness. But those beards certainly fetched the women. And simultaneous-like they looked so respectable.

The only other real function of hair is to keep flies and other insects from tickling.

The best thing for hair is combing and brushing it. And the very instruments which accomplish this—the brush and comb—are the ones which are likely to convey disease to the scalp. The primary health rule of the hair is to see to it that every brush and comb which touches your hair is clean and antiseptic. Washing them frequently in soap and water, or ammonia, and taking pains that they are exposed to sunlight in the drying process, will accomplish this. The danger in the barber shop is obvious from this standpoint. Modern barber shops have been glad to cooperate in installing sanitary devcies, but even the best of them are none too clean.

A metal comb is probably the best kind because it can be boiled. Metal bristles on hair brushes, on the contrary, are likely to do too much damage to the scalp to be recommended.

Shampooing the hair frequently is beneficial. Some oil should be added to the hair after the shampoo to preserve the natural oiliness and keep it from becoming brittle and splitting. Dr. Pusey recommends 70 per cent alcohol in which some castor oil has been dissolved: after application the alcohol evaporates and leaves the oil.

Splintering and breaking of the hair ends is, as a rule, the result of too vigorous brushing of abnormally dry hair. It is not an indication of any disease.

The idea of singeing the ends of these split hairs, because it closes the pores of the hair and keeps the oil in is nonsense. There are no holes or pores through the center of hairs, and no oil circulates inside the hair itself.

Dandruff is simply the scales from the scalp. Some people have more of these scales than others. There are several stages or degrees of the condition, and in its most exaggerated form it is a real disease—called seborrhoic dermatitis. In these cases there may be crusts on the scalp. All severe cases of dandruff should be treated by frequent cleansing and the application of a mild antiseptic solution.

Absorb Self In Work

— By MISS. VIRGINIA LEE —

"Dear Virginia Lee: I call you dear because you have become dear to me through reading your everyday letters of advice.

"My 19-year-old daughter reads them, too, and it is a mystery to me why she still persists in all modern ways. She smokes and drinks when in company with a fast set, and she pets with any strange young man who comes along when she should be in bed or studying to improve her mind and financial condition.

"She expects me to be nice to these petters, but how can I when I loathe the very thought that my one-time baby and little girl is now a man-handled flapper?

"I explained the rules of life to her several years ago. I have tried reasoning, loving, scolding, all to no avail.

"She is a country girl, but as we are in very limited circumstances, was obliged to work in the city, where she got into the wrong company. She is very pretty and is able to draw plenty of fellows, but is so shallow minded that she cannot hold on to the best young men and, strange as it seems, one of that sort is what she is anxious to get. I reason that a desirable man does not want a girl who is so ready to fall into every man's arms.

"I long for the day to come (if it ever does) when she can claim one man for her own. I believe she would drop the silly habits then.

"I have always been of a nervous temperament, but have tried so hard to control my nerves and guide her as a mother should, but I am now a nervous wreck, and I ask you if you think it would be wrong to leave home awhile and take up some work I have in mind, and get into different surroundings.

"ANXIOUS MOTHER."

I think leaving home for awhile and getting some work in which you can absorb yourself would be the best thing you can do, dear worried mother. You have your daughter and her behavior too much in your mind to see clearly. It would be best for you and best for her for you to change your surroundings and consequently your thought trend.

The fact that your daughter wants to marry a man who is not light minded shows that she is not altogether shallow, does it not? Keep on loving her, for the sillier she is the more she needs your constant love. She will wake up pretty soon. It is not only the boys who have to sow a few wild oats. She is sowing hers now.

Stop scolding and reasoning with her. Leave the responsibility for her actions on her own shoulders. Try to stop worrying. It does her no good and does you much harm. Trust to her innate good sense to bring her through, and if you possibly can, take up this work you have in mind. If you want to relieve your mind, write to me again, instead of scolding her.

BROWN EYES: I don't know how you expect me to choose the boy you should marry, my dear, if you, who know them, can't. If you don't love one so much more than the other that you can decide between them, don't marry either. Keep both as friends, if possible, and see if something won't happen to decide the matter for you. If you marry either, feeling as you do now, and anything unpleasant happens—no matter how trivial, after you are married—you'll decide you made a big mistake and make yourself miserable regretting you didn't take the other.

Keep Hands Smooth With Cream

— By GLADYS GLAD —

Hands so quickly lose their velvety smoothness, so quickly become rough and hard during the cold weather. This is especially true of the business woman, who must wash her hands frequently and does not have the articles of her dressin table within reach during the day.

However, hands can be kept just as attractive looking during the cold weather as they are in the summer season. True, the cold may make the hands temporarily too red. But no woman's hands need be dry and finely lined, if she gives them proper care. Each time that you wash your hands, you wash away some of the natural oil that keeps the skin smoth and supple. This oil must be restored to the skin, to insure it pliability.

When you wash your hands, be sure that you rinse the soap from them thoroughly. Then, while they are still wet, apply cold cream to them. Rub the cream into the skin for a minute or two. Then wipe the hands. To do this merely at night or in the morning will not be sufficient to keep the hands soft during the cold weather. It must also be done every time that you cleanse your hands during the day.

I don't believe it necessary that you take a hand lotion to your office. But there are creams that may be purchased in small tubes. Tuck one of these convenient tubes of cream in your handbag, or keep it in your desk. If you use it as I have suggested each time you wash your hands, you can keep your hands soft and smooth all winter. You'll find that your nails will also be benefited by this treatment. They will not become so brittle, and they will not break so frequently.

Red hands, as I have previously told you, usually result from poor circulation. A more heating diet, and plenty of warm clothing, will do a great deal to keep the hands white. Plenty of exercise and fresh air are also, of course, important requisites in assuaging the reddened condition of the hands.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And the four and twenty elders which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God, Saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord, God Almighty, which art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and has reigned.—Revelation, XI, 16, 17.

A NATION'S THANKSGIVING

How thankful should we be that there is an increasingly Christian spirit in America! We should be thankful for the disposition to deplore injustices and unbrotherliness, and increasing indications of an awakened conscience nationally.

We should be thankful as a nation for the encouraging prospects of peace among the nations.

We should be thankful for the unparalleled interest in Jesus Christ, a greater appreciation of His life and the sincere attempts to apply His teachings to all human relationships in this and other lands.

We should be thankful for the institution of the Church, eager to serve the present day needs by emphasizing the value of spiritual things in our modern scientific machine age.

Finally, we should be thankful that our nation sets apart a Day to give thanks as a national recognition of the goodness of God to His peoples everywhere.

LAME DUCK QUESTION

The question of changing things in Washington so that there will no longer be a "lame duck" session of congress is receiving its regular biennial airing. The subject always is brought forward by senators and representatives who are not lame ducks themselves and who, presumably cherish a delusion that they never will find themselves in that class.

The arguments are all in favor of altering the times at which congress meets so that no member will participate in its deliberations after his successor has been elected. The changes suggested are logical. Nobody undertakes to say they are not. But, on the other hand, neither the country nor the majority of the members of the two houses ever seem to be able to get greatly heated up over the subject.

Probably there are several reasons for this condition of passivity. The inertia caused by the presence of an order of things established with the founding of the nation is difficult to overcome. It is not clear that the present arrangement really is much more than a theoretical evil. It is not evident that "lame duck" sessions do any especial mischief. Most of that is perpetrated in the long sessions. The abuse of the "lame ducks" by their fellows who still have sound political walking apparatus is more demagogic as a rule than it is sincere and patriotic.

Beside all that, in view of the progressive deterioration of the quality of the membership of congress, it is rather difficult to blow up very much heartfelt enthusiasm over a proposal which, if adopted, will tend to accelerate progress downward, rather than retard it.

It will be perfectly proper to do away with the lame duck sessions, but the nation will be able to endure if they are allowed to persist.

A committee of public safety has been created in New York to combat the racketeers that are alleged to take $100,000,000 a year out of the pockets of legitimate business. When religions and castes in India can submerge their differences for the good of their country, American political parties ought to be able to lay off each other from the same high motive.

ALL of US

—By—
MARSHALL MASLIN

I AM THANKFUL

I make a list for Thanksgiving Day. I sit and let life move through my memory. I push the sordid and the mean away from me. I try to think of the finer and more enduring gifts one receives from life. I know there is hardness and indifference and pain in our living, but I turn aside from them for Thanksgiving Day and remember only that we have cause for thankfulness every hour of our lives.

I am thankful for puppy dogs that wag their tails and put their paws on me, for kittens that play and grown-up cats that ornament a home, for apples that are crisp and last the winter through, for birds that flash through gardens, for cool water when I thirst, for hot water when I am dirty and tired. I am thankful for small things.

* * *

I am thankful for certain sunsets I have seen and for occasional dawns, for moonlight on a dreaming city, for trees that lose their green leaves in the fall and claim them again in spring, for bulbs that retreat to darkness of winter but come conquering again in summer, for sunlight through trees, for the green on our California hills in autumn, for eastern trees that stand bravely beneath a weight of snow, for swift rides in automobiles, for quiet walks in the clear air that follows rain. For these I am grateful.

I am thankful for the wild goose that flies high above my head, for the eagle that screams to his waiting younglings, for the soft look in the eyes of a doe, for the bee that stores honey in a tree, for the wild lilac that covers my western canyons—I am thankful.

I am thankful for sudden, carefree laughter, for surprise parties and compliments and Grand Slams at bridge, for a little luck, for girling girls and sturdy youngsters who don't cry when they're hurt, for Compassion and Friendliness and Deep Affection, for Experience and Failure and Comfort and Fond Illusions and the Breaks of Life.

* * *

I am thankful for Gadflies, even, and people who will not let me be. I am thankful for the million winking stars and for minds that can understand them and the laws through which they move. I am thankful for all the great, all the wise, all the strong and tender men and women who have lived—for their deeds, for their dreams, for all hopes, all beauty, all legend and music they have brought into the world. I am thankful for the kindness of friends when I am troubled, for the shame fine people bring upon me—for the way they endure their agonies and save my averted face.

I am thankful for Life and I am not ashamed—and I know few men or women who could not, if they wished, make such a list as this.

THE QUESTION BOX

— Central Press Wash. Bureau —

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

How many millionaires are there in the United States?

Using the compilation of the tax statistics for 1926, there were 225 persons reporting incomes of $1,000,000 or more in the United States in that year. New York state with a total of 92 easily led all the other states. These figures are, as stated, for persons reporting an income of a million or more annually. The number of persons actually in the millionaire class would amount to many times this figure.

Peace Palace

When was the Peace Palace at The Hague built and what was the amount contributed by Andrew Carnegie toward its construction?

Following the establishment of the Court of Arbitration in 1899, the Palace of Peace, designed by the French architect, L. M. Cordonnier, was erected, Andrew Carnegie contributing $1,500,000 towards the expense of constructing.

Old Age Pensions

In how many of the states which have old age pension laws is the cost of said pension pensions carried partly by the state?

Of the seven states in which pension laws were in force in 1929, only one, Wisconsin, assumes part of the cost with the counties. In Wisconsin the state government assumes one-third of the cost up to a total of as much as $200,000 per annum. Beyond this the counties are required to meet the cost. In all the other states the full cost of the pension is borne by the counties.

Relation

What is the relationship between Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and the late Theodore Roosevelt?

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt is related to the late President Roosevelt through his marriage to the latter's niece. However, a blood relationship does exist, although it is a distant one, the governor coming from another branch of the Roosevelt family.

Prohibition

When and by whom was the eighteenth amendment adopted?

The house of representatives in Washington, D. C., adopted December 17, 1917, a senate joint resolution submitting to the states an amendment providing for the suppression of the liquor traffic one year after the ratification of the amendment by the required 36 state legislatures. The resolution had passed the senate August 1, 1917. It was amended by the house and the senate accepted the resolution as amended December 18. The proposed amendment was submitted to the state legislatures for ratification and by January 16, 1919, more than 36, the required number for making an amendment to the constitution valid, had taken affirmative action. Ratification of the prohibition amendment was formally proclaimed January 19, 1919.

Bo-Broadway

— By JOSEPH VAN HAALTE —

NEW YORK — Less money is spent by the average American for books than for greeting cards. The daily circulation of newspapers in this country is 66,305,151—and this, for millions, is the sole available reading.

Last year, of the 225,000,000 volumes released by publishers 10,187 new titles or editions were placed on the market.

NOT BOOK LOVERS

Statisticians have learned that the average American buys only two books a year; and after a slant at most of the books published in 1930, The Pastor, without prejudice, voices the belief that one of the two books the average American should get hold of, without delay, is the recent release by the Vanguard Press, of Edward Dean Sullivan's "Chicago Surrenders."

"CHICAGO SURRENDERS"

With the crime situation in the United States the subject of world discussion, "Chicago Surrenders,," furnishes an expose of the situation that cannot be overlooked.

It's one of the most important volumes issued in many a long day.

Mr. Sullivan, the author, is a veteran newspaper man — a keenly intelligent and sympathetic observer who brought to the writing of this book an experience gleaned from a quarter of a century of the hurly-burly of newsgathering in New York and Chicago.

In the old days, at Headquarters in Tammany Town, Sullivan rode nightly with Lieutenant Charles Becker and the latter's Strong Arm Squad—the same "Charlie" Becker who later, with four gunmen, was executed at Sing Sing for the murder of the gambler Rosenthal.

Sullivan "served time" at Auburn Prison as part of a newspaper investigation into the reactions of men confined there. In Chicago, during a race riot in 1924, Sullivan's life was saved by Dion O'Banion, later to become one of the wealthiest and most colorful gangsters in that gang-ridden city. It was from men like O'Banion that he gained his amazing slant on the gangster psychology.

WORTH NOTHING

That is a statement that should challenge the attention of the forces of righteousness — and, remember, it's uttered by a man who has won international recognition as an authority on the subject.

Don't mistake it. This is not a thinly veiled slam at prohibition. Mr. Sullivan makes no effort to explain, defend or attack the conduct or attitude of either the Dry or Wet element. He thinks both factions are responsible for an "overtone of menace such as no other nation has experienced." He merely arrays facts, sets forth "a condition that has never before been approached in the history of civilization," and in the rehearsal avoids controversy.

I repeat:

"Chicago Surrenders" is one of the most important volumes issued in many a long day.

THINK OF OTHER FOLK!

WETS HOPE TO LINE UP BOTH MAJOR PARTIES IN PRESIDENTIAL RACE

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—The wets are mighty hopeful of 1932.

They reckon that the Democratic convention is sure to name a wet presidential candidate, the southern delegations acquiescing. And it does sound like a reasonable forecast—assuming the choice of such a nominee, for example, as Franklin Roosevelt, who certainly appears to be overwhelmingly the strongest Democratic probability, at the present writing.

Furthermore, the wets calculate that the Republican candidate will be so scared at the Democratic candidate's wetness that he, too, will declare himself pretty wetly. This also is conceivable. It is unimaginable that the G. O. P. will select any dryer standard bearer than Mr. Hoover, and he is not so irrevocably committed to prohibition as to make it inconsistent for him to indorse modification.

NOW—IF MY dry readers will bear with me for a moment—I am not trying to make out a case for the wets, but to point out what seems to me to be an error in their mathematics.

Let us suppose, then, that both of the old line presidential candidates do take the wet side in 1932—cautiously, of course (they will do plenty of qualifying, that's a foregone conclusion), but too unmistakably to justify conscientious bone drys in voting for either one of them.

On such a supposition, the wets argue that nothing will remain for the drys but to put up a third, prohibition ticket—which the wets are confident will make only an insignificant showing, as in the pre-Eighteenth amendment days.

BEFORE accepting this theory 100 per cent, however, let us do a little more supposing.

Supposing that a third party presidential candidate runs in 1932, as a dry and nothing but a dry, he undoubtedly will be not only beaten, but hopelessly distanced.

Vice President Curtis (mentioned as a dry presidential possibility) would hardly carry Kansas. Simeon D. Fess (similarly mentioned) would be lucky to carry anything. George White, Ohio's newly-elected dryly Democratic governor (likewise mentioned), sounds about equally unpromising.

BUT SUPPOSE Gifford Pinchot should be nominated—as a progressive, just as the late Senator La Follette was nominated in 1924—and as a dry merely incidentally.

The western states are the progressive states—and dry also.

La Follette ran in a poor year for a progressive; we had "prosperity" with us then. And La Follette was a wet. Two years hence may be a better time, progressively speaking—plus the prohibition issue.

Supposing Mr. Pinchot to be a presidential candidate, it must be recognized that his dryness will handicap him in the populous eastern states—but we are supposing that, in these states, a wet Republican and a wet Democrat are splitting the wet presidential vote between them.

Or, instead of Mr. Pinchot, let us suppose the 1932 presidential nomination of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho as a third party progressive—and incidentally as a dry.

IN ALL THIS supposing, we are assuming that the third party dry has two wet (or wettish) rivals in the field against him.

The assumption that both old line parties will be pro-modification in 1932 is the wets' assumption and they like to assume it, because they figure that repudiation of prohibition by both of the orthodox political parties will relegate the dry cause to its pre-Eighteenth amendment status of impotency.

The point that I am attempting to make is that it does not look that way to me. To me it looks as if the wets will be much better off if one of the old line parties stays as dry as possible.

ENTHUSIASTIC wets refer to the country as overwhelmingly wet and enthusiastic drys refer to it as overwhelmingly dry.

My personal notion is that it is not sufficiently either the one way or the other for the majority element (whichever one it may be) to split its vote without being defeated.

So I would say that a strong presidential campaigner, like Gifford Pinchot or Senator Borah, could not ask anything better than to have all the wet Republicans voting for a modification Republican candidate and all the wet Democrats voting for a wet Democrat, while he scooped in all the drys from both groups.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

RED ANTS GAIN IN BATTLE

"One less ugly Red Ant to make trouble for the rest of the insects!" exulted Peter, then suddenly remembered his duty. He had hurried to the hill to see what he could see, and not yet had he peeped over the hill's top. Peter's heart leaped to his throat. Red Ant had already reached the Black Ant hill. What was to prevent others being there, too? What if he should meet another fierce enemy face to face at the crest? However, this was no time for fear. Peter had made a solemn promise to dear old Busy. It was up to him to keep it. Busy was depending on him for news, be that news good or bad.

Grasping his spike firmly, Peter made the best haste he could to the top of the hill. At last he reached his goal. Carefully, quietly he raised himself until he could peep over the crest. Whatever Peter may have thought to see, he was hardly prepared for the sight that now met his eyes. It did not seem very long ago since he had been watching the battle between the opposing tribes of ants from the other side of the hill, yet there had been time enough for a great deal to happen. At first glance, all doubt as to which side was going to win the battle, vanished. The columns of Red Ants had driven the poor Black Ants back and back until the battle was waging right under Peter's very nose right at the foot of the Ant hill. Although it was a dreadful sight, Peter, fascinated, gazed upon it, and, by and by, he began to see that the Ants fought in perfect order, just as they did everything else.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

— By MRS. MARY MORTON —

MENU HINT

Mock Chicken
Sweet Potatoes
Peas Cooked With Carrots
Apple, Celery and White Grape Salad on Lettuce With Mayonnaise
Nut Bread Butter
Chocolate Tapioca
Coffee

This menu will serve four. It may be served for a dinner or supper.

Today's Recipes

Mock Chicken.—This is prepared by having the butcher put little pieces of veal on to a skewer. Boil until tender, then roll in egg and breadcrumbs and fry.

Nut Bread.—Three-fourths cup sugar, four cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one egg, one and one-half cups milk, one cup nut meats. Sift sugar, flour, baking powder and salt together, then add egg, milk and nuts. Let stand one-half hour and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven.

Suggestions

Pasteurized Fruits

The pasteurization of dates after they are packaged is one of the latest innovations in the packing of dried fruits. This is done for the same purpose that milk is pasteurized, the destruction of harmful bacteria. While this process has not been widely applied to all dried fruits, it is said to be one of the future trends in this form of food production. The packages of pitted dates ready for use is another interesting development in the date industry.

In the fig family we are acquainted with the whole or pulled figs, the whole figs and the figs in syrup, the latter pertaining to the canned figs, and the former to the dried variety. The whole or pulled figs are usually a little more expensive than the others, but if they are to be served whole in salads or dessert, the additional cost is justified. Otherwise the layer figs will be just as tasty.

Dried apricots, peaches and apples, too, are coming to be more appreciated, now that we can procure them in better form than in previous days. All must be perfectly coooked to be enjoyed and to be relieved of the stigma of being unappetizing, a reputation attributed to dried fruits in general and prunes in particular.

Non-Skid Drainer

Put a ten-cent rubber mat under the dish pan or drainer that you stand on the drain board. It will prevent skidding.

Clean Combs and Brushes

— By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. —

Man, like the elephant, the rhinoceros, the hippopotamus and Canis chihuahua, is an almost hairless mammal. Such hair as we have is largely useless except as a secondary sexual characteristic. It is employed almost exclusively for the purpose of attracting a mate. Thus it acquires an exaggerated importance in our eyes.

Women used to want to have hair long and glossy and then they wanted it short and glossy. And now they are having the devil's own time trying to decide which way and glossy they want it.

But the foolish things women do about their hair for mating purposes is matched and double checked by what men do for the same reason. Think of the long-haired poets and violinists, with the feminine audience exhaling deeply as the mane is tossed back. And the Brigham Young beards in the old days. I remember as a kid seeing a great-uncle of mine combing his beard, which hung to his waist, until it shone with its silkiness. But those beards certainly fetched the women. And simultaneous-like they looked so respectable.

The only other real function of hair is to keep flies and other insects from tickling.

The best thing for hair is combing and brushing it. And the very instruments which accomplish this—the brush and comb—are the ones which are likely to convey disease to the scalp. The primary health rule of the hair is to see to it that every brush and comb which touches your hair is clean and antiseptic. Washing them frequently in soap and water, or ammonia, and taking pains that they are exposed to sunlight in the drying process, will accomplish this. The danger in the barber shop is obvious from this standpoint. Modern barber shops have been glad to cooperate in installing sanitary devcies, but even the best of them are none too clean.

A metal comb is probably the best kind because it can be boiled. Metal bristles on hair brushes, on the contrary, are likely to do too much damage to the scalp to be recommended.

Shampooing the hair frequently is beneficial. Some oil should be added to the hair after the shampoo to preserve the natural oiliness and keep it from becoming brittle and splitting Dr. Pusey recommends 70 per cent alcohol in which some castor oil has been dissolved: after application the alcohol evaporates and leaves the oil.

Splintering and breaking of the hair ends is, as a rule, the result of too vigorous brushing of abnormally dry hair. It is not an indication of any disease.

The idea of singeing the ends of these split hairs, because it closes the pores of the hair and keeps the oil in is nonsense. There are no holes or pores through the center of hairs, and no oil circulates inside the hair itself.

Dandruff is simply the scales from the scalp. Some people have more of these scales than others. There are several stages or degrees of the condition, and in its most exaggerated form it is a real disease—called seborrhoic dermatitis. In these cases there may be crusts on the scalp. All severe cases of dandruff should be treated by frequent cleansing and the application of a mild antiseptic solution.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A new pamphlet, "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," by Dr. Clendening, can be obtained by sendnig 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 E. Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlet on "Hygiene of Women" also is available for 10 cents.)

Absorb Self In Work

— By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE —

"Dear Virginia Lee: I call you dear because you have become dear to me through reading your everyday letters of advice.

"My 19-year-old daughter reads them, too, and it is a mystery to me why she still persists in all modern ways. She smokes and drinks when in company with a fast set, and she pets with any strange young man who comes along when she should be in bed or studying to improve her mind and financial condition.

"She expects me to be nice to these petters, but how can I when I loathe the very thought that my one-time baby and little girl is now a man-handled flapper?

"I explained the rules of life to her several years ago. I have tried reasoning, loving, scolding, all to no avail.

"She is a country girl, but as we are in very limited circumstances, was obliged to work in the city, where she got into the wrong company. She is very pretty and is able to draw plenty of fellows, but is so shallow minded that she cannot hold on to the best young men and, strange as it seems, one of that sort is what she is anxious to get. I reason that a desirable man does not want a girl who is so ready to fall into every man's arms.

"I long for the day to come (if it ever does) when she can claim one man for her own. I believe she would drop the silly habits then.

"I have always been of a nervous temperament, but have tried so hard to control my nerves and guide her as a mother should, but I am now a nervous wreck, and I ask you if you think it would be wrong to leave home awhile and take up some work I have in mind, and get into different surroundings.

"ANXIOUS MOTHER."

I think leaving home for awhile and getting some work in which you can absorb yourself would be the best thing you can do, dear worried mother. You have your daughter and her behavior too much in your mind to see clearly. It would be best for you and best for her for you to change your surroundings and consequently your thought trend.

The fact that your daughter wants to marry a man who is not light minded shows that she is not altogether shallow, does it not? Keep on loving her, for the sillier she is the more she needs your constant love. She will wake up pretty soon. It is not only the boys who have to sow a few wild oats. She is sowing hers now.

Stop scolding and reasoning with her. Leave the responsibility for her actions on her own shoulders. Try to stop worrying. It does her no good and does you much harm. Trust to her innate good sense to bring her through, and if you possibly can, take up this work you have in mind. If you want to relieve your mind, write to me again, instead of scolding her.

BROWN EYES: I don't know how you expect me to choose the boy you should marry, my dear, if you, who know them, can't. If you don't love one so much more than the other that you can decide between them, don't marry either. Keep both as friends, if possible, and see if something won't happen to decide the matter for you. If you marry either, feeling as you do now, and anything unpleasant happens—no matter how trivial, after you are married—you'll decide you made a big mistake and make yourself miserable regretting you didn't take the other.

Keep Hands Smooth With Cream

— By GLADYS GLAD —

Hands so quickly lose their velvety smoothness, so quickly become rough and hard during the cold weather. This is especially true of the business woman, who must wash her hands frequently and does not have the articles of her dressin table within reach during the day.

However, hands can be kept just as attractive looking during the cold weather as they are in the summer season. True, the cold may make the hands temporarily too red. But no woman's hands need be dry and finely lined, if she gives them proper care. Each time that you wash your hands, you wash away some of the natural oil that keeps the skin smoth and supple. This oil must be restored to the skin, to insure it pliability.

When you wash your hands, be sure that you rinse the soap from them thoroughly. Then, while they are still wet, apply cold cream to them. Rub the cream into the skin for a minute or two. Then wipe the hands. To do this merely at night or in the morning will not be sufficient to keep the hands soft during the cold weather. It must also be done every time that you cleanse your hands during the day.

I don't believe it necessary that you take a hand lotion to your office. But there are creams that may be purchased in small tubes. Tuck one of these convenient tubes of cream in your handbag, or keep it in your desk. If you use it as I have suggested each time you wash your hands, you can keep your hands soft and smooth all winter. You'll find that your nails will also be benefited by this treatment. They will not become so brittle, and they will not break so frequently.

Red hands, as I have previously told you, usually result from poor circulation. A more heating diet, and plenty of warm clothing, will do a great deal to keep the hands white. Plenty of exercise and fresh air are also, of course, important requisites in assuaging the reddened condition of the hands.

Hair

Agnes: You may allow your child's hair to grow long without any danger of its falling out, if you do not neglect to keep his hair and scalp in a good, healthy condition.

Enlarged Pores

Sally and V. G.: My method of refining enlarged pores is too long to print here. However, it is contained in detail in my "Beauty Culture" booklet. The pure Lanolin is a more effective cream for dimming wrinkles than the adulterated product.

Wrinkles

H. A. P., Jean and B. H. O.: Lanolin is primarily a skin food, and is used to help remove lines and wrinkles. Apply it generously to the wrinkled portions of the skin nightly before retiring.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture," if you will write her care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each, to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

AUTOISTS HURT AS CAR LEAVES ROAD

Robert Chitty, this city, and Miss Nora Cure, Wilmington, received minor injuries when a roadster in which they were riding was sideswiped by another machine and plunged down a steep embankment in front of The Robbins and Myers, Inc. plant on Home Ave., about 10 o'clock Wednesday night. Chitty, driving to Wilmington, had passed a machine coming in the opposite direction and which had nearly crowded him off the avenue, just prior to the mishap involving a second auto also coming from the direction of Wilmington. Miss Cure suffered minor injuries to her side and Chitty sustained an injured knee. The roadster was damaged but did not upset.

"INDIANA" WINNER OF SCHOOL VOLLEY BALL PENNANT HERE

Beats "Illinois" And Then Takes Junior High Champs

"Indiana" defeated "Illinois" 17 to 15 in the senior high championship volley ball finals at Central High School Wednesday afternoon. The "Hoosiers" presented a smooth running machine that functioned throughout the contest. In contrast "Illinois" did not have a full team and did not play the brand of ball that it has exhibited throughout the series. Though giving all they had the boys from "Illinois" could not extend themselves far enough to win the championship. Lane led the winners and kept them in the running during the full length of the game. Jones played the best game for the losers.

After winning the senior high championship "Indiana" turned the champion junior high volley ball team back by a 26 to 10 score. Wilmington, the junior high champions, played a much better game than the score indicates but its inability to click consistently lost it a chance to win the school championship. And so with Lane, Cornwell, and Foley giving their best "Indiana" was awarded the volley ball championship of Central High School for the present year. Two of the regular players for Wilmington were absent, namely, Moore and Bottoroff, and this took away a great deal of the "Quaker" punch. Glenn and Latimer substituted for this pair and played good ball along with Captain Yeakley who was the main threat of the losers.

The entire senior high school was dismissed for the double attraction but the junior high school was forced to remain in classes. The games were played during the senior high school "free period" which the junior high classes do not have.

LEAVE FOR CAIRO

LONDON, Nov. 27.— Marshall Field, III., Chicago millionaire and his wife, the former Mrs. Dudley Costes of London, left Nairobi for Cairo yesterday on one of the last stages of their aerial honeymoon in Africa, according to an Ex-Telegraph dispatch from Nairobi.

JAMESTOWN LIGHTS FAIL; GAME CALLED

A scheduled basketball game was of necessity postponed and candles came back into favor at Jamestown for six hours and fifteen minutes Wednesday night as the village was without electric lights from 6:45 to 12 o'clock. Bellbrook and Jamestown high school basketball teams were scheduled to meet on the Jamestown floor but the game had to be called off. Service was not restored until midnight, it was reported. The cause of the failure of the service was not reported to E. H. Heathman, of the Dayton Power and Light Co.

NO FIRE-STEAM

Clouds of steam rolling out of the kitchen were mistaken by children in the family for smoke and resulted in a summons for the fire department at 8:26 a. m. Thursday to the home of Elmer Strickle, 27 Bellbrook Ave. Firemen made a quick run but it was wasted effort.

AUTOISTS HURT AS CAR LEAVES ROAD

Robert Chitty, this city, and Miss Nora Cure, Wilmington, received minor injuries when a roadster in which they were riding was sideswiped by another machine and plunged down a steep embankment in front of The Robbins and Myers, Inc. plant on Home Ave., about 10 o'clock Wednesday night. Chitty, driving to Wilmington, had passed a machine coming in the opposite direction and which had nearly crowded him off the avenue, just prior to the mishap involving a second auto also coming from the direction of Wilmington. Miss Cure suffered minor injuries to her side and Chitty sustained an injured knee. The roadster was damaged but did not upset.

"INDIANA" WINNER OF SCHOOL VOLLEY BALL PENNANT HERE

Beats "Illinois" And Then Takes Junior High Champs

"Indiana" defeated "Illinois" 17 to 15 in the senior high championship volley ball finals at Central High School Wednesday afternoon. The "Hoosiers" presented a smooth running machine that functioned throughout the contest. In contrast "Illinois" did not have a full team and did not play the brand of ball that it has exhibited throughout the series. Though giving all they had the boys from "Illinois" could not extend themselves far enough to win the championship. Lane led the winners and kept them in the running during the full length of the game. Jones played the best game for the losers.

After winning the senior high championship "Indiana" turned the champion junior high volley ball team back by a 26 to 10 score. Wilmington, the junior high champions, played a much better game than the score indicates but its inability to click consistently lost it a chance to win the school championship. And so with Lane, Cornwell, and Foley giving their best "Indiana" was awarded the volley ball championship of Central High School for the present year. Two of the regular players for Wilmington were absent, namely, Moore and Bottoroff, and this took away a great deal of the "Quaker" punch. Glenn and Latimer substituted for this pair and played good ball along with Captain Yeakley who was the main threat of the losers.

The entire senior high school was dismissed for the double attraction but the junior high school was forced to remain in classes. The games were played during the senior high school "free period" which the junior high classes do not have.

LEAVE FOR CAIRO

LONDON, Nov. 27.— Marshall Field, III., Chicago millionaire and his wife, the former Mrs. Dudley Costes of London, left Nairobi for Cairo yesterday on one of the last stages of their aerial honeymoon in Africa, according to an Ex-Telegraph dispatch from Nairobi.

JAMESTOWN LIGHTS FAIL; GAME CALLED

A scheduled basketball game was of necessity postponed and candles came back into favor at Jamestown for six hours and fifteen minutes Wednesday night as the village was without electric lights from 6:45 to 12 o'clock. Bellbrook and Jamestown high school basketball teams were scheduled to meet on the Jamestown floor but the game had to be called off. Service was not restored until midnight, it was reported. The cause of the failure of the service was not reported to E. H. Heathman, of the Dayton Power and Light Co.

NO FIRE-STEAM

Clouds of steam rolling out of the kitchen were mistaken by children in the family for smoke and resulted in a summons for the fire department at 8:26 a. m. Thursday to the home of Elmer Strickle, 27 Bellbrook Ave. Firemen made a quick run but it was wasted effort.

AMERICA'S LITERARY BAD BOY WINS WORLD HONOR IN LETTERS

By CROSWELL BOWEN, Jr.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—An American novelist has been recognized as a leader among the writers of the world. He has been called a "pot boiler" and a genius but the soubriquet which has remained is, "The bad boy of American iLterature."

He is Sinclair Lewis, who has just been awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature, possibly the highest award an author can receive. Along with the honor goes the sum of $46,350.

Only three other English-writing authors have received the Nobel Prize and they were two Irishmen and an Englishman, Rudyard Kipling, William Butler Yeats, and George Bernard Shaw. Sinclair Lewis is the first American to receive the prize.

One only meets Lewis once before one calls him either "Red" or "Hal".

Lewis is tall and red-haired. He has a habit of banging on tables with his fist when excited, of softly singing hymns when pleased. He is 45, and looks 30. He was married twice.

His first wife was Grace Livingston Heggar, whom he married in April, 1914. She is a chic, handsome woman fond of society and now and then does a little writing.

She admits that she was never able to make her husband "conform." Their son Wells is now 16 and student at Andover. Wells can go to whatever college and enter whatever profession he wants to, his father says.

Sinclair Lewis went to Yale. In his home town, Sauk Center, Minnesota, where he was born in February 7, 1885, Yale had hardly been heard of. One just naturally went to the University of Minnesota.

At Yale, Lewis points out, he refused to conform. But he barged through his course and after taking a year off after his junior year he graduated in the class of 1908. His principal undergraduate achievement was his editorship of the venerable and ancient Yale Literary Magazine.

After he left college he was able to sell few of the things he wrote but as Oliver Harrison, writing of Lewis' life says:

"He solved his problems with courage and with honesty. First if he was to become a writer, he must learn the technique of his craft. He was during the next few years constantly writing and then rejecting his work. If he was to live during his time, he must discipline himself until he could compete efficiently with men who lived for and by their salaries."

He worked on newspapers, on press associations and magazines. He published a few short stories and sold some jokes to humorous magazines and sold his first book in 1914, "Our Mr. Wrenn," but fame was not yet his.

In 1920 Lewis published "Main Street" and the book was heard around the world. It was translated into every known language and millions of copies were sold. He says he wrote it without expecting it to sell. On top of "Main Street" came "Babbitt" thus silencing those who called the former a "tour de force."

Too much has been written about the works of Lewis but one writer says of "Babbitt", "It attracted Babbittism, and the entire order of machine made society in the robust growing cities which number their populations in the tens of thousands. And the business man read it, slapped his thighs, exclaimed that it was true of his neighbors, and at the same time winced at the wounds that it inflicted on his own self-esteem."

Lewis was divorced by his first wife, and later in Germany he met and married Dorothy Thompson. The marriage ceremony was performed in an airplane, in 1929. Lewis and his second wife have one son, Mike, aged six months. Mike has red hair, like his father.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis are going to Stockholm to be present on December 10, for the presentation of the award by a member of the Swedish Academy.

ELEAZER

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Middleton and Mrs. Laura Earley spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Sem Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Maddux, Frankfort, spent Wednesday with Mrs. Maddux' parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Hartsook.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Smith and daughters, the Misses Mary and Velma Smith, were the guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Volcha Hackney.

Messrs Claude Lickliter and Frederick Hartsook spent Friday and Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Maddux, Frankfort, O.

Mr. Will Lewis has been spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Faulkner left Wednesday for Defiance, O., to spend Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Laverne Fulton.

AUTO TURNS OVER

Emery W. Oglesbee, Wilmington Pike, farmer, escaped injury when his sedan skidded on the ice-coated surface of the Wilmington Pike and overturned two and a half miles southeast of Xenia early Tuesday night. Mr. Oglesbee was on his way to Xenia to attend a meeting of the Odd Fellows lodge when the mishap occurred. His machine was slightly damaged. He did not miss the lodge meeting, however.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

I have been waiting for two years for Henry Jeffers to get his rotary milker going. Now I've seen it running, and it has been publicly introduced, with the secretary of agriculture there and the governor of the state, and Thomas A. Edison pushing the starting button, and all that kind of thing.

What's remarkable about it? Only this, that with this big machine ten men will milk 1,600 cows three times every day. Think that over.

I say milk, but as a matter of fact only two of the ten men do any milking at all. All the other men do is to wipe each cow with an individual towel, attach the milking cups and detach them when milking is finished, and see that the machine keeps running smoothly.

* * *

Imagine a big room, all shiny tile, with a high ceiling, and in the center a circular structure, 10 or 12 feet high and 44 feet in diameter. Around the outside of this, at the floor, is a circular moving platform, like a merry-go-round, with iron stalls for fifty cows. At one point a narrow tile runway enters the building, and leads up to the platform The cows come from their barns in single file, and the leading cow steps on the platform as it revolves slowly, putting her head through a stanchion that closes automatically. The second cow steps on next to her, and so on—about three feet to the cow, five cows to the minute.

* * *

Meanwhile things begin to happen to cow No. 1. A powerful spray of warm water washes her hind quarters and udder. Two men in white uniforms dry her udder with clean towels. Next a blast of warm air dries her off. Next the attendant applies the milking cups And then for the rest of the revolution of the merry-go-round the milking goes on.

At the end of eight minutes more the milking is finished, the platform has made one complete revolution, and Mistress Cow finds herself opposite a door leading into the inside of the circular drum. The stanchion opens automatically, she is invited to step off, frontward, and finds herself again in a tile runway that dips down, passes under the floor, and eventually takes her back to her own barn, all her sisters following her again in single file.

* * *

Could anything be neater? About 500 cows are now milked three times a day, 1,500 milkings, with ten men and some considerable kilowatts of electric power. Later the full capacity of 1,200 to 1,600 cows will be utilized.

The dairy farm where this newest machine marvel is operating is perhaps the last word in milk-manufacturing efficiency. It has one of the half-dozen de-hydration plans for alfalfa and other green crops in existence, four of the largest silos in the world, a famous research laboratory, and a highly modern system of labor management too intricate to be described here.

There is , I suppose, nothing like it in the world. Certainly there is nothing in the milk world like Mr. Jeffer's new "rotolactor," or cow merry-go-round.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

His first wife was Grace Livingston Heggar, whom he married in April, 1914. She is a chic, handsome woman fond of society and now and then does a little writing.

She admits that she was never able to make her husband "conform." Their son Wells is now 16 and student at Andover. Wells can go to whatever college and enter whatever profession he wants to, his father says.

Sinclair Lewis went to Yale. In his home town, Sauk Center, Minnesota, where he was born in February 7, 1885, Yale had hardly been heard of. One just naturally went to the University of Minnesota.

At Yale, Lewis points out, he refused to conform. But he barged through his course and after taking a year off after his junior year he graduated in the class of 1908. His principal undergraduate achievement was his editorship of the venerable and ancient Yale Literary Magazine.

After he left college he was able to sell few of the things he wrote but as Oliver Harrison, writing of Lewis' life says:

"He solved his problems with courage and with honesty. First if he was to become a writer, he must learn the technique of his craft. He was during the next few years constantly writing and then rejecting his work. If he was to live during his time, he must discipline himself until he could compete efficiently with men who lived for and by their salaries."

He worked on newspapers, on press associations and magazines. He published a few short stories and sold some jokes to humorous magazines and sold his first book in 1914, "Our Mr. Wrenn," but fame was not yet his.

In 1920 Lewis published "Main Street" and the book was heard around the world. It was translated into every known language and millions of copies were sold. He says he wrote it without expecting it to sell. On top of "Main Street" came "Babbitt" thus silencing those who called the former a "tour de force."

Too much has been written about the works of Lewis but one writer says of "Babbitt", "It attracted Babbittism, and the entire order of machine made society in the robust growing cities which number their populations in the tens of thousands. And the business man read it, slapped his thighs, exclaimed that it was true of his neighbors, and at the same time winced at the wounds that it inflicted on his own self-esteem."

Lewis was divorced by his first wife, and later in Germany he met and married Dorothy Thompson. The marriage ceremony was performed in an airplane, in 1929. Lewis and his second wife have one son, Mike, aged six months. Mike has red hair, like his father.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis are going to Stockholm to be present on December 10, for the presentation of the award by a member of the Swedish Academy.

AUTO TURNS OVER

Emery W. Oglesbee, Wilmington Pike, farmer, escaped injury when his sedan skidded on the ice-coated surface of the Wilmington Pike and overturned two and a half miles southeast of Xenia early Tuesday night. Mr. Oglesbee was on his way to Xenia to attend a meeting of the Odd Fellows lodge when the mishap occurred. His machine was slightly damaged. He did not miss the lodge meeting, however.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

I have been waiting for two years for Henry Jeffers to get his rotary milker going. Now I've seen it running, and it has been publicly introduced, with the secretary of agriculture there and the governor of the state, and Thomas A. Edison pushing the starting button, and all that kind of thing.

What's remarkable about it? Only this, that with this big machine ten men will milk 1,600 cows three times every day. Think that over.

I say milk, but as a matter of fact only two of the ten men do any milking at all. All the other men do is to wipe each cow with an individual towel, attach the milking cups and detach them when milking is finished, and see that the machine keeps running smoothly.

* * *

Imagine a big room, all shiny tile, with a high ceiling, and in the center a circular structure, 10 or 12 feet high and 44 feet in diameter. Around the outside of this, at the floor, is a circular moving platform, like a merry-go-round, with iron stalls for fifty cows. At one point a narrow tile runway enters the building, and leads up to the platform The cows come from their barns in single file, and the leading cow steps on the platform as it revolves slowly, putting her head through a stanchion that closes automatically. The second cow steps on next to her, and so on—about three feet to the cow, five cows to the minute.

* * *

Meanwhile things begin to happen to cow No. 1. A powerful spray of warm water washes her hind quarters and udder. Two men in white uniforms dry her udder with clean towels. Next a blast of warm air dries her off. Next the attendant applies the milking cups And then for the rest of the revolution of the merry-go-round the milking goes on.

At the end of eight minutes more the milking is finished, the platform has made one complete revolution, and Mistress Cow finds herself opposite a door leading into the inside of the circular drum. The stanchion opens automatically, she is invited to step off, frontward, and finds herself again in a tile runway that dips down, passes under the floor, and eventually takes her back to her own barn, all her sisters following her again in single file.

* * *

Could anything be neater? About 500 cows are now milked three times a day, 1,500 milkings, with ten men and some considerable kilowatts of electric power. Later the full capacity of 1,200 to 1,600 cows will be utilized.

The dairy farm where this newest machine marvel is operating is perhaps the last word in milk-manufacturing efficiency. It has one of the half-dozen de-hydration plans for alfalfa and other green crops in existence, four of the largest silos in the world, a famous research laboratory, and a highly modern system of labor management too intricate to be described here.

There is , I suppose, nothing like it in the world. Certainly there is nothing in the milk world like Mr. Jeffer's new "rotolactor," or cow merry-go-round.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

The first grade will receive their report cards for the first time, Monday, December 1. . . We have learned to write our names and numbers to sixty. . . . Lawrence Weller has returned after a brief illness. . . Virginia Johnston is leader for our Good Health Club. She inspects finger nails and the appearance of children each morning. . . Mr. Gower presented us with a new supply of construction paper one day last week.

SECOND GRADE

We have added to our schedule an English course in which we are making books called "Our Language Friends". . . The second grade has new Arithmetic workbooks. . . We are glad to have Ella Mae Bahns, Helen Marie Bigson and Junior Hook in school again after several days of sickness . . . Elizabeth Miller entertained the second grade with a reading, "Epaminondas" last Monday. . . Dorothy Hunter's birthday was November 13, and her class mates presented her with a fruit roll.

SEVENTH GRADE

Our traveling club took an imaginary trip to Switzerland this month. . . We are studying "The Courtship of Miles Standish" in English. We find it very interesting, and we enjoy learning more about the life spent in the Plymouth Colony, especially during this season of the year, so near Thanksgiving Day. . . The boys of the seventh grade are making necktie racks in manual training. . . The girls are making extensive study of milk in their home economics course.

TENTH GRADE

We have been making an extensive study of the three forms of literature; The short story; the romance; and the novel in our English class. Mr. Gower is our instructor. . . Our geometry work books have proven to be very enjoyable and they have made geometry one of our most interesting studies. . . We have recently begun the study of the Greeks in history, and we find them to have been a very cultured people. We are pleased to have Miss Morris as our teacher.

ELEVENTH GRADE

The school board has bought a special edition of the literature and life books in order that the juniors and seniors could make a more extensive study in the literature courses. The junior girls who are taking the commercial course are making rapid progress under the instruction of Mr. Kinder.

SCHOOL NEWS

The operetta, "The Lady of the Terrace," which was presented in the high school auditorium Saturday night, November 22, was very good. The money raised will go to help pay Mr. Powell.

Thanksgiving vacation began on November 27, and will continue until Monday, December 1.

Harry White and Donald McKinney have been added to our library staff. The state library is going to lend us some books this year, for which we are very grateful.

The grades in the new building on the hill have just received two new globes for their geography study.

The first and second grades have recently received supplies of primary materials furnished by the state.

The third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades wish to thank the welfare club for purchasing the instruction papers and supplies for them.

Last week in assembly the teachers gave us an account of their experiences on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, 1918. Mr. Kinder gave us a very interesting talk, as did also Mr. Ray and Mr. Wright.

In this week's assembly Mr. Gower gave us a very interesting talk on his trip West last summer. He told us many very interesting things.

Last Thursday Mrs. Beam gave us an account of "The Passion Play," which she saw on her trip abroad last summer. We all enjoyed it very much.

SPORTS

The B. H. S. basketball teams are progressing very rapidly in their practice work.

There are four freshmen girls and six freshmen boys going out for practice this year, and we are expecting successful teams in the years to come.

POPE HONORS MAN FOR CORRECTING VERSION OF BIBLE

BUDAPEST, Nov. 27.—"The man who rehabilitated God."

That is how Benjamin Donath is known and why he is reverently admired and pointed out to visiting strangers in this town.

The title was conferred on him by Cardinal Gasquette, member of the Papal commission at Rome for the revision of the Bible.

Donath, who is an amateur Bible student, claims to have discovered that a wrong translation of the second commandment had misrepresented God as a God of vengeance when in reality the original text represented him as a God of mercy and forgiveness.

The second commandment in its present form contains this passage:

"For I, the Lord, thy God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the Children unto the third and fourth generation."

Now Donath, who reads fifteen languages, claims that a comparison of texts and especially the oldest Greek translation from the original Hebrew, reveals the following true version of this passage:

"I am thy God, the guardian of grace, who bears with the sons for the sins of their fathers."

"This translation reveals," says Donath, "that God is not a vengeful God who punishes innocent children for the sins of their fathers, but that on the contrary, He is a merciful God who in judging the sins of the children does not forget that the sins of the fathers are partly responsible for them and therefore forgives them.

"That meaning is also in conformity with the rest of the Bible and especially the books of the prophets in which God, in all of His expressions, reveals himself as a God of mercy and Grace."

Donath sent all his material to Rome with an eighty-page memorandum which cited, in addition to the ancient Greek translation, forty-three other ancient church books which still contained this passage in its original version. All of them spoke of the God "who forgives the sons the sins of their fathers."

"One day I received a telegraphic summons to come to Rome," Donath relates. "I stayed there a month. Recently, I received a lengthy communication from Cardinal Gasquette saying that the Pope, on the advice of the commission, had accepted my version as true.

Tragedy in Her Note

In despair because of a pitiful note written by her daughter, begging her to return, Mrs. Louisa Grant Sims, penniless, hurled herself to death from an Atlanta hotel room. The child, Mary Grant Sims, 11, grieves for the mother who never will return, little realizing that her note was partly responsible for her death. In her note Mary Grant told a story of alleged ill-treatment and hunger, in Gaffney, S. C., where she had been left with relatives.

With Remarkable Air Record

Dr. John D. Brock, one of the Middle West's best known civilian fliers, has just completed the remarkable record of a flight a day for the past 365 days. The occasion was celebrated at Fairfax Airport, Kansas City, Mo., where Dr. Brock was presented with a silver loving cup by the Missouri Chamber of Commerce.

YELLOW SPRINGS

The Ladies Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church held its annual Thank offering in the church Sunday evening. "Jephthalis' Daughter," a Biblical drama was given under the direction of Miss Katherine Fittz. The characters in the drama were presented by Mrs. Ed Beatty, Mrs. A. C. Swinnerton, Misses Katherine Fittz, Kathleen and Ruth White and Esther Weiss, Messrs. Gates Downey, J. N. Wolford, Dallas Marshall, Archie Dean, Allyn Swinnerton. The drama was well rendered and much credit is given to Miss Fittz who directed the play and planned the special costumes.

The seniors of Bryan High School presented "The Kelly Kid," a one act comedy in the high school auditorium Friday evening. Miss Mildred Hartman selected the cast and Miss Katherine Fittz directed the play. The cast was as follows. Ruth White, Katherine Fittz, Katherine Gibbs, Kathleen Hacket, Bill Best, John Bittner and Paul Howe.

The Thanksgiving vesper services held at the First Reformed Church in Xenia Sunday afternoon under the direction of the organist Miss Marguerite Williams were well attended and enjoyed by a very appreciative audience. Mrs. Allyn C. Swinnerton assisted with the anthems. Those from here who attended the service are: Rev. and Mrs. Carl White, Mrs. Charles Loe, Miss Florence Williams, Miss Olivia Cox, Miss Irene Hawes and Mr. A. C. Swinnerton.

The annual Thanksgiving services will be held Thanksgiving evening at 7:30 in the Presbyterian Church. The sermon will be preached by Rev. Henry A. Simmons, pastor of the Methodist Church. Music will be rendered by a mixed choir from both churches.

Mrs. Norah Henry and daughter Ruth of Devon, Pennsylvania, are visiting her mother, Mrs. Will Forbes.

Burns Weston, of Cleveland, spent the week end with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. S. F. Weston.

Miss Hazel Brewer spent the week end in London the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garratt.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Sweringen are spending a week with friends and relatives in Columbus and New Holland.

The men of the First Presbyterian Church entertained with an oyster supper in their church dining room Monday evening. After the supper a program of special music and speeches was enjoyed.

MANY OHIOANS WILL EXHIBIT HERDS AT COMING STOCK SHOW

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—When the International Live Stock exposition, Ameria's biggest congress of agriculture, opens its doors at the Chicago stock yards Saturday, there will be an increased number of exhibitors from Ohio over that of former years, officials of the exposition have announced.

The best of Ohio's herds, studs, and flocks to the number of 458 head, representing nineteen different breeds of farm animals, popular in this state, will be sent to the Chicago exposition.

The popular red, white and roan breed of beef cattle will be represented by such well known Ohio herds as those of Cloverleaf Farms, of Tiffin; Harry T. Lewis, of Foster; Maxwalton Farms and P. G. Ross, of Mansfield; and the Ohio State University, of Columbus. The college farm will also send nominations to the fat classes of the Hereford and Aberdeen-Angus beef breeds.

Whitehall Farm, of Yellow Springs, and Michael Wagner, of Fremont will exhibit Herefords.

Ohio State University will be represented in the exposition's Inter-Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest, participated in by state and provincial college teams from this country and Canada. Five students have been named to defend their school and state in this event; they are Lawrence G. Brubaker, of Ashland County; Lee D. Glass, of Athens County; James M. Harris, of Greene County; R. C. Littleton, of Hardin County, and John L. McKitrick, of Paulding County. D. J. Kays, of the College animal staff, is coach of this quintet.

The swine classes of the 1930 International will have numerous contenders from Ohio including the Poland-Chinas of J. K. Hackett, of Norwalk. Strong nominations will be made in the Duroc-Jersey classes by a heavy winner at the last International, Chandler P. Raup, of Springfield; Charles Hildebolt, of Eaton; and the University Farm.

Thirteen draft horse breeders of this state will send nominations of the two draft breeds that have long been popular on Ohio farms. The International Percheron exhibitors' list includes the following from Ohio: G. A. Dix, Ralph W. Humes, Otho H. Pollock and W. O. Ziegler, of Delaware County; W. R. Lawrence and Sons, of Marion; Maiers Brothers, of St .Marys; Ohio State University, of Columbus, which will also show Belgians; Cecil A. Reed, of London; J. K. Spitler and Sons, of of Bloomville; and Woodside Farms, of Columbus. Charles A. Wentz and Sons, of Kirby, and H. H. Petty, of Urbana, will carry Ohio colors into the Belgian horse ring.

LOVING DUCKS ARE BETTER THAN WOOD

ASHTABULA, O., Nov. 27.—Up and going hunters no longer use wooden decoy ducks when they visit the marshes for a day's sport.

J. R. Wyman, an enthusiastic Ashtabula duck hunter, has a pair of the latest style decoys, live ducks. They appear to somewhat resemble love birds, perfectly contented when together but very very indignant and lovesick when separated.

Wyman takes the 'lovey duckies' to wherever he expects to hunt and moors them to an anchor with a piece of cord. They are separated and at once set up fearful cries, attracting others of the species to them. Then 'Bang!' and another canvas back hits the water.

The system works fine, says Wyman, but it's tough on the decoys, anchored to the bottom of the lake and unable to get together.

MANY OHIOANS WILL EXHIBIT HERDS AT COMING STOCK SHOW

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—When the International Live Stock exposition, Ameria's biggest congress of agriculture, opens its doors at the Chicago stock yards Saturday, there will be an increased number of exhibitors from Ohio over that of former years, officials of the exposition have announced.

The best of Ohio's herds, studs, and flocks to the number of 458 head, representing nineteen different breeds of farm animals, popular in this state, will be sent to the Chicago exposition.

The popular red, white and roan breed of beef cattle will be represented by such well known Ohio herds as those of Cloverleaf Farms, of Tiffin; Harry T. Lewis, of Foster; Maxwalton Farms and P. G. Ross, of Mansfield; and the Ohio State University, of Columbus. The college farm will also send nominations to the fat classes of the Hereford and Aberdeen-Angus beef breeds.

Whitehall Farm, of Yellow Springs, and Michael Wagner, of Fremont will exhibit Herefords.

Ohio State University will be represented in the exposition's Inter-Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest, participated in by state and provincial college teams from this country and Canada. Five students have been named to defend their school and state in this event; they are Lawrence G. Brubaker, of Ashland County; Lee D. Glass, of Athens County; James M. Harris, of Greene County; R. C. Littleton, of Hardin County, and John L. McKitrick, of Paulding County. D. J. Kays, of the College animal staff, is coach of this quintet.

The swine classes of the 1930 International will have numerous contenders from Ohio including the Poland-Chinas of J. K. Hackett, of Norwalk. Strong nominations will be made in the Duroc-Jersey classes by a heavy winner at the last International, Chandler P. Raup, of Springfield; Charles Hildebolt, of Eaton; and the University Farm.

Thirteen draft horse breeders of this state will send nominations of the two draft breeds that have long been popular on Ohio farms. The International Percheron exhibitors' list includes the following from Ohio: G. A. Dix, Ralph W. Humes, Otho H. Pollock and W. O. Ziegler, of Delaware County; W. R. Lawrence and Sons, of Marion; Maiers Brothers, of St .Marys; Ohio State University, of Columbus, which will also show Belgians; Cecil A. Reed, of London; J. K. Spitler and Sons, of of Bloomville; and Woodside Farms, of Columbus. Charles A. Wentz and Sons, of Kirby, and H. H. Petty, of Urbana, will carry Ohio colors into the Belgian horse ring.

LOVING DUCKS ARE BETTER THAN WOOD

ASHTABULA, O., Nov. 27.—Up and going hunters no longer use wooden decoy ducks when they visit the marshes for a day's sport.

J. R. Wyman, an enthusiastic Ashtabula duck hunter, has a pair of the latest style decoys, live ducks. They appear to somewhat resemble love birds, perfectly contented when together but very very indignant and lovesick when separated.

Wyman takes the 'lovey duckies' to wherever he expects to hunt and moors them to an anchor with a piece of cord. They are separated and at once set up fearful cries, attracting others of the species to them. Then 'Bang!' and another canvas back hits the water.

The system works fine, says Wyman, but it's tough on the decoys, anchored to the bottom of the lake and unable to get together.

ANNUAL AUTO SHOW BEING PLANNED AT CLEVELAND ALREADY

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 27.—With arrangements already completed to show more than 150 models of 1930 passenger automobiles, officials of the Cleveland Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers Association have announced that this city's annual automobile show will be held in the Public Hall auditorium from Jan. 24 to 31, 1931.

Officials have expressed their belief that this winter's annual show will be the most successful in history and elaborate plans are being made for the exhibition.

Following a custom established here some years ago, another fashion show will be offered, delineating the relationship of styles in women's apparel to motor car styles. Living models will appear in demonstrating this revue.

Plans are being completed for a musical program as well as a new and attractive scheme of decorations for the auditorium.

Dealers expect the 1931 show to inaugurate a banner season of motor car buying in anticipation of extensive summer travel next year.

Motor car accessories, oil, fuels and greases will be displayed in conjunction with the showing of the new models.

The show will open at noon, Jan. 24 and will remain open daily through the following Saturday.

WORK ON AMPHIBIAN BASE IS LAUNCHED

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 27.—Construction has been started here on the downtown lake front amphibian base, which was conceived as an incentive to increase passenger and commercial service by amphibian planes to and from Cleveland.

The project will cost approximately $15,000. It was proposed for the city by City Manager Daniel Morgan.

The amphibian terminal, according to plans drawn up by City Engineer George B. Bowers, is to be located on the lake front, just northwest of the site where the new municipal stadium is being constructed.

Dirt excavated from the site where the stadium is being built is used for filling in the land near the lakefront where the air base will be situated.

The air terminal will include a landing ramp, a runway and hangars, plans reveal.

CLEVELAND'S TAX RATE WILL BE $2.75

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 27. — A tax rate of $2.75 for each $100 valuation has been set for Cleveland for 1931, according to the Cuyahoga County budget commission.

The rate is the highest in a decade and is an increase of thirteen cents on $100 valuation over last year which was $2.62. The increase, the commission pointed out, was due largely to the $44,000,000 in bond issues and tax levies voted by the people in the last election for relief of unemployment through public works improvement.

The commission awarded the city a total of $20,734,000 for expenditures for all purposes during the coming year. The amount is an increase of $1,000,000 over last year.

CLIFTON

Miss Helen Boolman was operated on for appendicitis at Springfield Hospital last Friday morning.

Miss Nan B. Williams, of Dayton, was the guest of Miss Florence White last Wednesday and Thursday.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mr. Robert Edwards and Miss Iola Knoblauch, of Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Edwards was formerly postmaster of Clifton.

Rev. E. H. Thompson, of Idaville, Ind., preached at the United Presbyterian Church last Sabbath morning.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hopping attended the birthday dinner given Mrs. Rebecca Todd by her grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Todd and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Drake, at the home of Mr. Todd in Springfield, last Thursday, the 20th. Mrs. Todd was ninety-three years old and is still active. Most of her life has been spent in or near Clifton.

Mrs. Laura Printz entertained Mr. and Mrs. Earle Littleton and Mrs. Elizabeth Hopping at a pheasant dinner last Friday evening at her home.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held in the Presbyterian Church Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. Jurkat, of Cedarville College will preach.

Monday evening a District Rally of the Y. P. C. U. will be entertained by the local United Presbyterian Society at the Opera House here.

Mrs. Wallace Rife entertained at a six o'clock dinner honoring her husband's birthday Saturday evening the following guests: Mrs. Jennie Rife, of Cedarville; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Estle and family and Miss Isabel Webster.

The district comprises six churches, Springfield First and Second, Cedarville, Jamestown, Xenia and Clifton. Mr. and Mrs. Heinz, of Columbus, were present to conduct the singing and social entertainment.

A second demonstration of the "Care of the Sick" will be given at the home of Mrs. Adam Brewer, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mesdames Jones, Carl Corry and Miss Lenore Northup will be the demonstrators.

A delightful meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. James Swaby on the Yellow Springs Pike last Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Arthur Swaby was assistant hostess.

The devotional part of the program was conducted by Miss Nan B. Williams, of Dayton. The Rev. Ralph Fox followed with a fine talk on the same thought—Thank Offering.

Mr. John Webster entertained ten of his boy friends at a six o'clock dinner last Saturday evening.

At the social hour which followed, ladies of the church presented Miss Williams with a corsage bouquet as a parting gift of esteem.

The collection, with that taken at the church, was over $101.00.

Rev. Ralph M. Fox began his work at Eaton, O., last Sabbath. The family expects to move to Dayton this week.

Miss Florence White spent the week-end at Yellow Springs as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Frank C. Adams.

THANKS

...and they thanked Providence for a slender existence—for the bare ability to live in this strange and alluring land.

If these Pilgrim Fathers found substance for appreciation among their tribulations, how insistently rings the age's challenge that we stop and bow in thanks for the blessings Providence has seen fit to bestow upon us today. In the face of the gratitude that instituted Thanksgiving Day, our fullest appreciation can convey but a part of our thankfulness for the blessings that are ours.

TAKE
That Padlock off your Purse!

YOU may think in sealing up your purse you are protecting your individual prosperity in hoarding a reserve that will keep you until real good times come around again. Don't you realize that within that locked purse you are actually imprisoning prosperity and the scarcer will be the dollars that will come to you to store away in that purse.

Whether you are a wage-earner, a merchant or a manufacturer your income must come from what some one else is spending or consuming. People must buy the things you sell or produce or business becomes stagnant. . .the wage-earner is discharged, the merchant fails and the manufacturer ceases production for lack of replacement orders.

Where is your income coming from if every one keeps a padlock on his purse? Spending is the only media of prosperity . . . money kept in circulation is the motive power that keeps business going; keeps employment active and guarantees your personal prosperity.

All America is coming to a realization of that fact now . . . awakening to the real source of depression and is entering upon a relief program of Buying so that the merchant has an outlet for his goods . . . so he can order from the manufacturer . . . so the manufacturer can employ more help to produce those goods . . . so the worker can earn more money to spend. There is no relief from depression; no return to prosperity; no solution to unemployment until buying becomes general.

The manufacturers and merchants are doing their part now to make buying an inducement and a profit to the consumers because prices now on all important commodities are down to lowest possible levels.

It's Patriotic To Buy Now. It's Good Sense To Buy Now.

It's Thrifty To Buy Now.

OLDEST PASTOR HAS WED 250 COUPLES

CONNEAUT, O., Nov. 27.—Reverend R. E. Benjamin of Conneaut, who is believed to be the oldest pastor in the point of service in Ohio Baptist churches, has officiated at 250 weddings, 600 funerals, and has baptized 800 persons.

Reverend Benjamin was ordained a minister of the gospel thirty-seven years ago. Today he is the pastor of three churches, of three different denominations.

He has the pastorates at the South Ridge Baptist Church, the Monroe Methodist Church, and the Hammond's Corners Christian Church.

Reverend Benjamin has officiated at more funerals than all of the other preachers in Conneaut and vicinity combined.

The aged pastor was born on a farm two miles southeast of Pierpont, April, 1868. He is the great grandson of Asa Benjamin, who served in George Washington's bodyguard. He was graduated from Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich., in 1891.

One of his most unusual incidents as a minister was when he performed the marriage ceremony of his mother to her second husband, Alvin Scramlin. He also officiated at the marriage of his son.

LEGION TO MEET

R. Hayes Hamilton, lecturer, will be on the program of a meeting of Foody Post, American Legion, next Tuesday evening in post hall, Court House, it is announced. Paul Halder, "mess sergeant" and his committee, will furnish refreshments for the meeting and a report of the membership campaign will be heard.

DOLORES DEL RIO'S KIN MARRIES

Dolores Del Rio's cousin, Carlos Asunsolo, obtained a license to wed Christina Montt, granddaughter of one and niece of two former presidents of Chile, in Los Angeles. The couple met when Asunsolo came to Hollywood seeking a share of the film fame which his cousin found so easily. They are shown above.

NEW HARDING STAMP TO BE SOLD MONDAY

A new one and one-half cent Harding stamp, bearing a full-face likeness of the former President in lieu of the profile view that now decorates these stamps, will be placed on sale first at the post office in Marion, O., Monday, December 1.

The border design of the stamp has also been change, the postal department announces. Stamp collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the new stamp may send a limited number of addressed covers, not exceeding twenty-five, to the postmaster at Marion with a cash or postal money-order remittance to cover the value of the stamps. Covers bearing pencil addresses will not be accepted.

COUNTY REPORTED 54 ACCIDENTS

Greene County reported fifty-four accidents in October, none of which resulted fatally, according to statistics made public by the state industrial commission.

One accident in the county caused permanent partial disability, fifteen caused seven days or more lost time, three caused less than seven days and thirty-five caused no loss of time but required medical attention. The total time loss to workers in the county was 760 days. In September this county had seventy-five accidents.

CEDARVILLE

Miss Ruth West left Saturday for Toledo, where she will visit for several days with her sister, Susanna West.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Turnbull, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis, Cedarville, Mr. George Little and daughter, Helen, of Xenia attended a wild game dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hopping Tuesday evening.

Three tables of Rook was in play at the home of Mrs. John Ross Tuesday night.

Mrs. Roll Shultz and Barbara Jean Winters of Dayton, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Spencer last week.

The regular meeting of the O. E. S. No. 418 was held Monday night in the chapter room. The election of officers was as follows: Marie Martindale, W. M.; Marvin Borst, W. P.; C. E. Masters, Assoc. P.; Anna Little, secretary; Kathryn Masters, treasurer; Ruby Murphy, conductor; Eva Wright, assoc. conductor; Mattie Cummings trustee for three years.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirkpatrick and Prof. and Mrs. Donald Wickersham of Delaware, O., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Burns.

Recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Ross were: Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wilson, Mrs. A. Hurley, of Xenia; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ralls and daughter Phyllis of Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. Dana Busch and Arthur Bennet of Gallipolis, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Gillough and son Raymond and wife and baby of Dayton, spent one day last week with Mr. and Mrs. John Gillough.

Miss Bernice Elias is in Dayton for a few days, visiting Miss Francis Wells.

The Golden Rule class of the M. E. Church held its party Thursday night in the church parlors.

Mrs. O. A. Dobbins and Mrs. Arthur Evans have issued a number of invitations to friends for a reception at their country home on the Cedarville and Jamestown Pike Tuesday afternoon.

MIXTURE WILL SAVE FARMERS MONEY ON FERTILIZER, SAID

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—By mixing superphosphate commercial fertilizer and manure, many Ohio farmers save in the cost of their fertilizer applications, according to E. P. Reed, extension specialist in soils and crops for the Ohio State University.

Ordinarily, he points out, it requires about seven hours to apply fertilizer on ten acres of corn. If labor costs amount to thirty cents an hour, the cost of two horses thirty cents an hour, and the depreciation on the drill twenty-five cents an acre, the total cost of applying fertilizer on a ten-acre field is $6.70. By mixing phosphate with manure this sum may be saved.

The procedure, as Reed explains it, is to fill the spreader half full of manure, spread on top a layer of about thirty-five pounds of twenty per cent superphosphate, and then fill the spreader with manure. In this way an even application of fertilizer is insured.

Eight tons of manure and 250 pounds of twenty per cent superphosphate are usually applied to the acre. In experiments eight tons of stall manure have increased production of crops per acre to the value of $37.72. When 250 pounds of superphosphates were mixed with the manure the increases were worth $57.22. By adding phosphate to manure, corn yields were increased 10.52 bushels per acre, wheat yields 5.86 bushels, and clover 856 pounds, a total increase in yields per acre worth $19.50.

A ton of fresh-mixed horse and cow manure contains about ten pounds of nitrogen, five pounds of phosphorus, and twelve pounds of potash. Additions of phosphate help to balance the manure by supplying an adequate amount of phosphorus for plant growth. It is not practical, Reed adds, to mix other fertilizers with manure.

READ THIS FIRST:

Joretta Dowling is the only daughter of a wealthy merchant of the west, yet capable, poised and sensible. She has just made her debut and become engaged to Norman Williams, a wealthy shipbuilder, because her socially ambitious mother has persuaded her that it is the best thing to do. Her vain, pompous and adventurous father has just bought a new yacht, which she christens at a party. She meets Jim Norton, the engineer, and is attracted to him at once. On the way home that night Norman wants her to elope, and is angered at her refusal, but apologizes the next morning and meets her for lunch. Dowling sends for Jim. They arrange to make weekly trips, obviously for fishing and pleasure, but with a secret destination. At luncheon Norman urges Joretta to marry him soon. Her mother plans to have the wedding in October, which Joretta thinks is too soon. But Norman is jubilant over the plans. Meanwhile her father anchors his boat at a southern port and disappears ashore, ordering the crew to stay aboard until his return. Joretta gives a week-end yacht party, including Vernon La Cossit from New York, who is in the west getting atmosphere for a new musical comedy.

CHAPTER 11

Vernon La Cossit interested Joretta. She was grateful for his attention. He personified to her what was lacking in her own life—a purpose, ambition, accomplishment. To her delight, she found, too, that he didn't have to work, so far as money was concerned. He had an independent income from an estate in England, of his mother's family, though he had conveyed the impression that he had to support himself.

"But I couldn't be a gigolo at tea dances if I had twice as much. I like to work." His ready smile flashed at her, as he guided her about the deck with such ease of rhythm and effort. "Oh, I know what most people think about the work of an artist. All play. Dance and be merry, for tomorrow you may have a few minutes' thinking to do. Oh, yes, if they could only looks in on rehearsals or on the hours when inspiration and necessity drive a poor writer until his brain is numb with strain and his body aching with weariness. But we like it, just as the banker likes his cage and the miller his mill."

"You make me envious, and so useless feeling."

"On the contrary, you are charming and altogether necessary. You don't need to be useful, you are so ornamental."

"There isn't such a lot of satisfaction in that."

"And there are plenty of girls who would disagree with you."

"Let's not talk about me. You are so much more interesting. How long are you staying here?"

"Only another week. This is the first day I haven't been out gathering atmosphere. I have cubic yards of it. I'd like to show you some ideas I've originated for costumes—choruses and whatnot."

"Really?" marveling at his interest. "Will you bring them over some day next week?"

"Make it Monday — the sooner, the better."

And then it was later that she saw Jim. In the swift rush of the events of the week, she had almost forgotten the vivid impression he had made on her the night she first saw him. She was alone, standing by the railing, looking down into the lacy trail of white foam that swept away from the hull of the boat, trailing like a bridal veil over the green velvet carpet of the sea. A late moon was just rising out of the water, propped on its edge against the sky like a great copper disk on edge. Footsteps sounded behind her and she turned about, to face Jim Norton. He doffed his cap with the obsequious gesture of a man of culture in response to her, "Good evening, Mr. Norton."

"Good evening, Miss Dowling. A beautiful night." She thought how his voice vibrated like a fine-toned musical instrument, deep without being harsh.

She now stood with her back to the rail, her arms resting gracefully along either side. She wore honey-colored panne velvet with beige lace trimming, and standing there in the soft light, streaming over her hair and bare shoulders and gown, he thought she looked like honey that had melted and congealed into form—and as sweet. He couldn't take his eyes from her—hers held them while neither of them spoke for a breathless moment.

"A beauti ful night."

In that moment, her memory seemed to make a new photographic record of the somber, quiet grey eyes so intent upon her, and the well-groomed immaculateness of his hair, his hands and his white-uniformed stature. He looked more like an officer of superior rank in the navy than her father's engineer.

But all that had occupied a mere fraction of time, so minute that neither was conscious of any particular hesitancy on the part of the other, save that each of them experienced a mutual impression of attraction to the other.

She asked, "How did the Montezuma take her trial voyage, Mr. Norton? I hear you went way down the Mexican coast."

"Splendid. Good weather all the trip, of course. I hope we have the same this trip. Do you like the sea?"

"I love it. I love anything that is busy and powerful and useful."

He laughed with amusement and his white, even teeth flashed. "You're taking in a lot of space and matter, Miss Dowling. It's a big, busy, powerful world."

"All but me and a few others like me. Parasites," she said sarcastically, and raised appealing eyes to him as if she were in deep trouble and wanted to ask him to help her. She didn't know why she talked just this way to him. Her mood tonight and her reverie alone — and the man himself—prompted confidence. "All this," her hand swept out in a gesture that indicated the yacht and its occupants, "such a futile waste of time and energy—and for what?"

"Well," he attempted to offer that help which she asked of him, "it gives work to fellows like me and Ben. What would be the use of engineers if there weren't some yachts and steamers and engines to operate?"

"Yes," she admitted reluctantly. "But you people think you have the worst of the bargain. And you haven't at all. Why—you're really blessed."

He turned his cap about, wondering how to answer her without offense. "I agree with you. You happen to be wrong—if you think I resent being the engineer instead of the owner of this ship."

She smiled up at him eagerly, interested. "Oh, I—like that, Mr. Norton. I—dislike having people resent it because I seem to have everything. I can't help it because my dad has so much money and is vain about it, can I?"

He smiled at her earnestness. "You're all right, Miss Dowling. Uncle Charley was right."

"Oh, Uncle Charley," she laughed, "don't you believe everything he says about me. What my parents haven't done to spoil me, he has. He's a dear old soul. But he has me on a pedestal so high I'm afraid I'll topple off some day."

"I don't wonder," he said quietly.

She looked at him quickly, then out over the water—experienced a pleasant friendliness for the youth. He was interesting, nothing at all uncouth about him. Now Ben, she had seen him this afternoon and exchanged a few words with him. But he was just an ordinary laborer compared with Jim. She wondered about him, wanted to ask questions about himself but was reluctant to do so. One only questioned into the private affairs of underlings whose services one commanded and whose activities one had to know.

"I wonder if you would do me a favor, Mr. Norton?" she turned about again to face him.

"Anything," he assured her, wondering.

"You may think I'm queer, but I wish you would show me about the engines and things of this boat. I like to know about things even if I don't do anything. Dad will never explain anything mechanical to me. He can't believe I'm really interested, you know."

"Delighted. When—tomorrow?"

"Not with this crowd aboard. They won't let me alone five minutes. May I come down to the club some day when you're in the harbor?"

"As you wish. Let me know."

"Make it Tuesday, if dad isn't using the boat, Uncle Charley will tell me if you are at the club. Thanks a lot, Mr. Norton. Good night."

"Good night, Miss Dowling."

He stood and watched her until she disappeared, then turned and leaned over the railing where she had stood, his hands clasped together so tightly that the knuckles showed white.

What a girl! Princess — thoroughbred—indeed! And he almost regretted that he had been the one chosen from the shop to run Dowling's yacht. What was the use to even see what you wanted when you couldn't have it? Like a kid with his nose flattened against a show window full of fascinating electric toys and a dime in his pocket to spend! Agony. It took a hero to endure that, and heroes were born, not made.

Funny little thing! Did she mean it—wanting to know about the engines? Yes, she wasn't the kind to pose. Too sincere. Anyway, why should she feign an interest in gasoline engines? Then he thought suddenly—Williams. Why hadn't she asked him to show her the engines? Williams was supposed to know more about them than he; but didn't, of course. Lucky dog. He didn't resent Williams nor his money—but when it came to having a girl like that! Too good for him—too good for any man, but seems she might have done better. She didn't need his money. Love—maybe. He wondered. And recalled the way she had looked at him tonight, as if she wanted him to help her find the thing she was seeking that her father's money could not buy. He wondered what it was. Some will-o'-the-wisp?

MIXTURE WILL SAVE FARMERS MONEY ON FERTILIZER, SAID

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—By mixing superphosphate commercial fertilizer and manure, many Ohio farmers save in the cost of their fertilizer applications, according to E. P. Reed, extension specialist in soils and crops for the Ohio State University.

Ordinarily, he points out, it requires about seven hours to apply fertilizer on ten acres of corn. If labor costs amount to thirty cents an hour, the cost of two horses thirty cents an hour, and the depreciation on the drill twenty-five cents an acre, the total cost of applying fertilizer on a ten-acre field, is $6.70. By mixing phosphate with manure this sum may be saved.

The procedure, as Reed explains it, is to fill the spreader half full of manure, spread on top a layer of about thirty-five pounds of twenty per cent superphosphate, and then fill the spreader with manure. In this way an even application of fertilizer is insured.

Eight tons of manure and 250 pounds of twenty per cent superphosphate are usually applied to the acre. In experiments eight tons of stall manure have increased production of crops per acre to the value of $37.72. When 250 pounds of superphosphates were mixed with the manure the increases were worth $57.22. By adding phosphate to manure, corn yields were increased 10.52 bushels per acre, wheat yields 5.86 bushels, and clover 856 pounds, a total increase in yields per acre worth $19.50.

A ton of fresh-mixed horse and cow manure contains about ten pounds of nitrogen, five pounds of phosphorus, and twelve pounds of potash. Additions of phosphate help to balance the manure by supplying an adequate amount of phosphorus for plant growth. It is not practical, Reed adds, to mix other fertilizers with manure.

READ THIS FIRST:

Joretta Dowling is the only daughter of a wealthy merchant of the west, yet capable, poised and sensible. She has just made her debut and become engaged to Norman Williams, a wealthy shipbuilder, because her socially ambitious mother has persuaded her that it is the best thing to do. Her vain, pompous and adventurous father has just bought a new yacht, which she christens at a party. She meets Jim Norton, the engineer, and is attracted to him at once. On the way home that night Norman wants her to elope, and is angered at her refusal, but apologizes the next morning and meets her for lunch. Dowling sends for Jim. They arrange to make weekly trips, obviously for fishing and pleasure, but with a secret destination. At luncheon Norman urges Joretta to marry him soon. Her mother plans to have the wedding in October, which Joretta thinks is too soon. But Norman is jubilant over the plans. Meanwhile her father anchors his boat at a southern port and disappears ashore, ordering the crew to stay aboard until his return. Joretta gives a week-end yacht party, including Vernon La Cossit from New York, who is in the west getting atmosphere for a new musical comedy.

CHAPTER 11

Vernon La Cossit interested Joretta. She was grateful for his attention. He personified to her what was lacking in her own life—a purpose, ambition, accomplishment. To her delight, she found, too, that he didn't have to work, so far as money was concerned. He had an independent income from an estate in England, of his mother's family, though he had conveyed the impression that he had to support himself.

"But I couldn't be a gigolo at tea dances if I had twice as much. I like to work." His ready smile flashed at her, as he guided her about the deck with such ease of rhythm and effort. "Oh, I know what most people think about the work of an artist. All play. Dance and be merry, for tomorrow you may have a few minutes' thinking to do. Oh, yes, if they could only looks in on rehearsals or on the hours when inspiration and necessity drive a poor writer until his brain is numb with strain and his body aching with weariness. But we like it, just as the banker likes his cage and the miller his mill."

"You make me envious, and so useless feeling."

"On the contrary, you are charming and altogether necessary. You don't need to be useful, you are so ornamental."

"There isn't such a lot of satisfaction in that."

"And there are plenty of girls who would disagree with you."

"Let's not talk about me. You are so much more interesting. How long are you staying here?"

"Only another week. This is the first day I haven't been out gathering atmosphere. I have cubic yards of it. I'd like to show you some ideas I've originated for costumes—choruses and whatnot."

"Really?" marveling at his interest. "Will you bring them over some day next week?"

"Make it Monday — the sooner, the better."

And then it was later that she saw Jim. In the swift rush of the events of the week, she had almost forgotten the vivid impression he had made on her the night she first saw him. She was alone, standing by the railing, looking down into the lacy trail of white foam that swept away from the hull of the boat, trailing like a bridal veil over the green velvet carpet of the sea. A late moon was just rising out of the water, propped on its edge against the sky like a great copper disk on edge. Footsteps sounded behind her and she turned about, to face Jim Norton. He doffed his cap with the obsequious gesture of a man of culture in response to her, "Good evening, Mr. Norton."

"Good evening, Miss Dowling. A beautiful night." She thought how his voice vibrated like a fine-toned musical instrument, deep without being harsh.

She now stood with her back to the rail, her arms resting gracefully along either side. She wore honey-colored panne velvet with beige lace trimming, and standing there in the soft light, streaming over her hair and bare shoulders and gown, he thought she looked like honey that had melted and congealed into form—and as sweet. He couldn't take his eyes from her—hers held them while neither of them spoke for a breathless moment.

"A beauti ful night."

In that moment, her memory seemed to make a new photographic record of the somber, quiet grey eyes so intent upon her, and the well-groomed immaculateness of his hair, his hands and his white-uniformed stature. He looked more like an officer of superior rank in the navy than her father's engineer.

But all that had occupied a mere fraction of time, so minute that neither was conscious of any particular hesitancy on the part of the other, save that each of them experienced a mutual impression of attraction to the other.

She asked, "How did the Montezuma take her trial voyage, Mr. Norton? I hear you went way down the Mexican coast."

"Splendid. Good weather all the trip, of course. I hope we have the same this trip. Do you like the sea?"

"I love it. I love anything that is busy and powerful and useful."

He laughed with amusement and his white, even teeth flashed. "You're taking in a lot of space and matter, Miss Dowling. It's a big, busy, powerful world."

"All but me and a few others like me. Parasites," she said sarcastically, and raised appealing eyes to him as if she were in deep trouble and wanted to ask him to help her. She didn't know why she talked just this way to him. Her mood tonight and her reverie alone — and the man himself—prompted confidence. "All this," her hand swept out in a gesture that indicated the yacht and its occupants, "such a futile waste of time and energy—and for what?"

"Well," he attempted to offer that help which she asked of him, "it gives work to fellows like me and Ben. What would be the use of engineers if there weren't some yachts and steamers and engines to operate?"

"Yes," she admitted reluctantly. "But you people think you have the worst of the bargain. And you haven't at all. Why—you're really blessed."

He turned his cap about, wondering how to answer her without offense. "I agree with you. You happen to be wrong—if you think I resent being the engineer instead of the owner of this ship."

She smiled up at him eagerly, interested. "Oh, I—like that, Mr. Norton. I—dislike having people resent it because I seem to have everything. I can't help it because my dad has so much money and is vain about it, can I?"

He smiled at her earnestness. "You're all right, Miss Dowling. Uncle Charley was right."

"Oh, Uncle Charley," she laughed, "don't you believe everything he says about me. What my parents haven't done to spoil me, he has. He's a dear old soul. But he has me on a pedestal so high I'm afraid I'll topple off some day."

"I don't wonder," he said quietly.

She looked at him quickly, then out over the water—experienced a pleasant friendliness for the youth. He was interesting, nothing at all uncouth about him. Now Ben, she had seen him this afternoon and exchanged a few words with him. But he was just an ordinary laborer compared with Jim. She wondered about him, wanted to ask questions about himself but was reluctant to do so. One only questioned into the private affairs of underlings whose services one commanded and whose activities one had to know.

"I wonder if you would do me a favor, Mr. Norton?" she turned about again to face him.

"Anything," he assured her, wondering.

"You may think I'm queer, but I wish you would show me about the engines and things of this boat. I like to know about things even if I don't do anything. Dad will never explain anything mechanical to me. He can't believe I'm really interested, you know."

"Delighted. When—tomorrow?"

"Not with this crowd aboard. They won't let me alone five minutes. May I come down to the club some day when you're in the harbor?"

"As you wish. Let me know."

"Make it Tuesday, if dad isn't using the boat, Uncle Charley will tell me if you are at the club. Thanks a lot, Mr. Norton. Good night."

"Good night, Miss Dowling."

He stood and watched her until she disappeared, then turned and leaned over the railing where she had stood, his hands clasped together so tightly that the knuckles showed white.

What a girl! Princess — thoroughbred—indeed! And he almost regretted that he had been the one chosen from the shop to run Dowling's yacht. What was the use to even see what you wanted when you couldn't have it? Like a kid with his nose flattened against a show window full of fascinating electric toys and a dime in his pocket to spend! Agony. It took a hero to endure that, and heroes were born, not made.

Funny little thing! Did she mean it—wanting to know about the engines? Yes, she wasn't the kind to pose. Too sincere. Anyway, why should she feign an interest in gasoline engines? Then he thought suddenly—Williams. Why hadn't she asked him to show her the engines? Williams was supposed to know more about them than he; but didn't, of course. Lucky dog. He didn't resent Williams nor his money—but when it came to having a girl like that! Too good for him—too good for any man, but seems she might have done better. She didn't need his money. Love—maybe. He wondered. And recalled the way she had looked at him tonight, as if she wanted him to help her find the thing she was seeking that her father's money could not buy. He wondered what it was. Some will-o'-the-wisp?

BRINGING UP FATHER By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

American men make the best husbands and she hopes and plans to marry one, says Lily Damita, one of Hollywood's liveliest mademoiselles.

The French star excepts actors: "They are all right on the screen but no good in the home," she reveals." Actors are of a jealous nature, and I would not think of marrying one. Besides," she naively adds, "I should be jealous myself of all the women they have around them."

In America, explains the dynamic actress, a husband devotes his life to his wife, while in Europe the men let their love cool after the honeymoon and enjoy more freedom.

The divine call between the sexes is more spectacular in foreign countries, declares Lily, because girls and boys are segregated until they grow up. Co-education breeds a familiarity that takes the TNT out of love, the star insists.

When not philosophizing, Mlle. Damita is busily engaged in making talkies. She has just completed "Fighting Caravans," at Paramount.

* * *

Phil Frame reports, in the news columns, on the success of the initial Theater Guild production of the year, "Hay Fever," a Noel Coward comedy which was finely interpreted by the first Guild cast of the season.

Mr. Frame reveals that the performance was well done, comedy well cast, the performers showing remarkable finish and ability for amateurs. This is encouraging because it presages a successful season for Miss Eleanor Kiernan, who did the directing.

Forced to change directors, the Guild was happy in its selection of this talented young Xenian, who has been winning considerable success in this field elsewhere. The first production was more or less a "baptism of fire" for her and her friends within and without the Guild, are happy that her first production was so marked a success.

* * *

The Guild director meets many new problems in this work, because all casts are not of equally high calibre and some performers, especially in their first appearance, may seem dull and stupid in the attempt to interpret their lines.

Thus a faulty production may not be entirely the work of the director, although the blame is always hers. In its first seasonal offering, the Guild gave Miss Kiernan a remarkably supple cast, one that responded nobly to her best efforts, and the successful debut was the result.

Returning to Lily Damita, Paramount executives engaged in weighty conferences over the way Gary Cooper should address her in "Fighting Caravans." Once he leaped from his horse and cried, "Felice." Someone decided that it sounded like he said "Police" so the scene was done over and the name left out.

JUNIOR COMMUNITY CHEST NEARS GOAL

The Junior Community Chest was nearing its goal Wednesday afternoon when a checkup of the two days of campaigning had been made. It was decided, however, to continue the campaign for a day or two next week when school resumes.

Last year 1,682 out of 2,024 students enrolled in the public schools gave $66.25 while the report so far this year discloses that 1,435 out of 2,042 students enrolled in the schools have contributed $64. At least 325 more contributions must be made before last years' goal is passed. The entire student bodies of East High School and Lincoln grades have contributed 100 per cent. Every room in the building has made a perfect subscription to the campaign.

In Central High School the junior girls and junior boys have given 100 per cent subscriptions as has one group of the sophomore girls and the seventy grade boys. Spring Hill first grade along with Orient Hill third and fourth also reported 100 per cent rooms Wednesday afternoon.

ADDRESSES PUPILS

Professor Clarence M. Eddy of Denison University met with all members of the senior class of Central High School Wednesday morning and gave a short talk about students wishing to enter college. Mr. Eddy is director of admissions at Denison University and is well known in this locality. Mr. Eddy also showed some interesting pictures to the members of the class and later talked with a number of the students individually.

Football Talks Feature Of Friday's Broadcasts

ONE of the most interesting football programs that has gone on the air this season is being announced for Friday evening, the eve of the big game between the Army and Notre Dame. The first of the programs will be broadcast at 6:30 o'clock, coming through Station WLW, Cincinnati, when Dick Hanley, coach of Northwestern University, will appraise both teams and prophesy the outcome of Saturday's game. Notre Dame's Glee Club will sing on this program.

The same evening from 9:30 to 10 o'clock on the Armour Hour broadcast, also coming over station WLW, Cincinnati, Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, will be guest speaker. His subject has not been announced but since it is so near the close of the football season it is thought he will review the principal games. The Notre Dame Glee Club will also appear on this program. The musical numbers will be "When the Irish Backs Go Marching By," this being the first time this number has ben heard on the air; "Victory March," "Down the Line" and "On Brave Old Army Team."

TUXEDO ENTERTAINERS

The Tuxedo Fiddlers and the Tuxedo Xylophonists sponsored by the Early and Daniel Co., Cincinnati, are on the air each week on Tuesdays and Fridays. The xyloponists are heard on Tuesdays at 12 o'clock noon and the fiddlers on Fridays at the same hour, both over station WLW, Cincinnati.

Dayton Girl Winner

Miss Carol Deis, 2123 Wayne Ave., Dayton, winner of the Atwater Kent, radio audition in southern Ohio in which Miss Eleanor McDonnell, this city, participated, finished first in the mid-west district audition conducted in Chicago recently. Richards W Dennis, Sioux Falls, S. D., finished first in the men's division of the audition.

Here's Easy Work

Did you know that the wives of "Amos 'n Andy," who in private life are known as Mrs. Freeman F. Gosden (Amos' wife) and Mrs. Charles J Correll (Andy's wife), draw weekly salaries for doing what millions of listeners do every night for nothing? Mrs. Gosden and Mrs. Correll listen to every broadcast and comment and criticize the efforts of the two radio artists.

JUNIOR COMMUNITY CHEST NEARS GOAL

The Junior Community Chest was nearing its goal Wednesday afternoon when a checkup of the two days of campaigning had been made. It was decided, however, to continue the campaign for a day or two next week when school resumes.

Last year 1,682 out of 2,024 students enrolled in the public schools gave $66.25 while the report so far this year discloses that 1,435 out of 2,042 students enrolled in the schools have contributed $64. At least 325 more contributions must be made before last years' goal is passed. The entire student bodies of East High School and Lincoln grades have contributed 100 per cent. Every room in the building has made a perfect subscription to the campaign.

In Central High School the junior girls and junior boys have given 100 per cent subscriptions as has one group of the sophomore girls and the seventy grade boys. Spring Hill first grade along with Orient Hill third and fourth also reported 100 per cent rooms Wednesday afternoon.

ADDRESSES PUPILS

Professor Clarence M. Eddy of Denison University met with all members of the senior class of Central High School Wednesday morning and gave a short talk about students wishing to enter college. Mr. Eddy is director of admissions at Denison University and is well known in this locality. Mr. Eddy also showed some interesting pictures to the members of the class and later talked with a number of the students individually.

Football Talks Feature Of Friday's Broadcasts

ONE of the most interesting football programs that has gone on the air this season is being announced for Friday evening, the eve of the big game between the Army and Notre Dame. The first of the programs will be broadcast at 6:30 o'clock, coming through Station WLW, Cincinnati, when Dick Hanley, coach of Northwestern University, will appraise both teams and prophesy the outcome of Saturday's game. Notre Dame's Glee Club will sing on this program.

The same evening from 9:30 to 10 o'clock on the Armour Hour broadcast, also coming over station WLW, Cincinnati, Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, will be guest speaker. His subject has not been announced but since it is so near the close of the football season it is thought he will review the principal games. The Notre Dame Glee Club will also appear on this program. The musical numbers will be "When the Irish Backs Go Marching By," this being the first time this number has ben heard on the air; "Victory March," "Down the Line" and "On Brave Old Army Team."

TUXEDO ENTERTAINERS

The Tuxedo Fiddlers and the Tuxedo Xylophonists sponsored by the Early and Daniel Co., Cincinnati, are on the air each week on Tuesdays and Fridays. The xyloponists are heard on Tuesdays at 12 o'clock noon and the fiddlers on Fridays at the same hour, both over station WLW, Cincinnati.

Gov. Roosevelt To Speak

Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York, will launch the annual campaign for the sale of Christmas Health Seals in an address to be broadcast Friday over the NBC network. Gov. Roosevelt will talk from his vacation headquarters in Warm Springs, Ga., some time between 9 and 9:30 o'clock during the Interwoven program. The program will be heard through station WCKY, Covington, Ky.

Ruth Etting Featured

Ruth Etting, radio and stage favorite, will be guest artist of the RKO Theater of the Air to be broadcast over an NBC network Friday evening at 10:30 o'clock, coming through WSAI, Cincinnati.
